Redemption Center

Owner awaits bottle bill

By SEAN DEVLIN

WILMINGTON - While a proposed bottle bill, designed to assist struggling redemption centers, hangs in the balance of the state Legislature, Wilmington Redemption Center owner Thomas Keogan contemplates the future of his once thriving, now endangered business.

Keogan, like other redemption center owners in surrounding communities, is feeling the economic pinch of rising recycling costs and stagnant handling fees. This threat is so great, it may cause Keogan to permanently close the doors of his six year-old business.

Within the last year, redemption centers in Woburn, Lexington, Reading, and numerous other towns have been forced to shutdown.

"It doesn't look good," said Keogan.

The reasons behind the outbreak of recent closings stems from the current bottle bill, which does little to protect the small business owner.

Congregational Church needs renovation

By KIMBERLY MILLS

In the early 1700s, devoted citizens, of what is now Wilmington, traveled up to 7 miles, in all kinds of New England weather, to attend mass. It was for this reason that a new church was petitioned and finally built in Wilmington in 1733. The meetinghouse, as it was called, was the centerfold for all community activities and has quite an interesting historical background.

This first meetinghouse was an unpainted, square, barn-like building with roughly plastered walls and no heat. Before stoves were installed, baptismal water often froze in the basin and communion bread on the plate. Furthermore, although everyone was welcome in the church, community distinctions were maintained by the seating arrangement once inside.

After surviving the Revolutionary War, the church burned down, in 1864, when the Bond Cracker Factory across the street caught on fire. The present building, the Wilmington Congregational Church, was dedicated on the same site in 1866.

Over the years the church has undergone many renovations to make it as beautiful as it is today. The 250th anniversary of the church was celebrated in 1983. Today, not only does it serve as a place of worship but, as a "meetinghouse" where all citizens of Wilmington are able to be part of a special family.

Unfortunately, the Congregational church, which has served the community for so long, is now in need of extensive repairs. It desperately needs to be stripped and painted while new gutters are needed as well. There are unfunded plans for a handicap access elevator and the tower clock, which is supposed to be taken care of by the town of Wilmington, needs repairs as well.

Many fundraisers have been held in order to raise money for the renovations yet the congregation is still far from their goal. Considering that it will cost approximately $15,000 just to paint the church, ideas and donations would be greatly appreciated. If anyone is interested in helping to keep the Congregational Church of Wilmington the wonderful structure that it is should contact the church office at 508-658-2264.

Police respond to youth abusing mother

By FRANK J. AMATO

Wilmington police received an E-911 call late Friday morning with screaming in the background, the phone is disconnected. Moments later, another call came in. The voice on the other end said that an 11 year old boy was abusing his mother. At this time, police were unsure of the extent of any injuries.

When police arrived, they found the young man pushing his mother around the home.

Police were then contacted by the crisis team from the Center for Mental Health and Retardation, in Lexington.

Apparently, juvenile was known to the center and had been contacted about the situation at about the same time as the E-911 calls. The crisis team informed the police department that they were prepared to commit him for observation.

The officers detained the juvenile and transported him to the station to await the crisis team to intervene. By the time he arrived at the station, the crisis team already had the appropriate paperwork faxed to the police station and he was transported directly to Winchester Hospital.

His mother was not seriously injured and did not require medical treatment.

Town Hall Playground Registration underway

WILMINGTON - Playground programs; (Ellen Grinder and Dorothy McCarthy) Ages six-12 (completed first grade but not seventh grade), $45 Mon-Fri., 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Tues., July 1, Tuesday, Aug 12 (Town Hall and Woburn St. School).

Due to the increased number of children who registered last year, the Woburn Street School has been added as a second playground location this summer. Parents may register their child between 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. weekdays.

The two playgrounds will feature a healthy mix of sports, arts and crafts, quiet games, active games, special events, sports, tournaments, field trips and free play. This is a good program for volunteer helpers who have completed grades seven eight or nine. Five leaders and several volunteers provide supervision. The second child in a family pays $25; third is free. A playground shirt is included.

Route 93 project

Interchange bids in

By JAMES HAGGERTY

WOBURN — The bids are reportedly now in for the massive Commerce Way interchange project off Route 93 at the Wilmington/Reading line, and the only hitch at this point remains a state wetland variance.

Woburn Redevelopment Authority (WRA) Chair John Marlowe said he has learned that a tentative low bid of $13 million was submitted, but the state contract will not officially be awarded until the wetland variance is granted.

Marlowe said a subsequent inquiry to the state Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) on the wetland variance revealed a decision on the variance could be only 10 days to two weeks away.

Marlowe said he also called local state legislators to try to move a decision along on the wetland variance issue, given the fact that the Fourth of July holiday is rapidly approaching and two weeks can become much longer this time of year.

Once the wetland variance is issued, the bid process will be made official, Marlowe predicted.

Marlowe said he didn't foresee any reason why the variance wouldn't be approved since the new design actually has less impact on the wetlands than the old design.

WRA member Richard O'Rourke remained skeptical on how quickly a decision would be made by the state on the wetland variance.

Can you 'ace' this outdoor cooking quiz?

Time to clean the backyard grill and get ready for outdoor gatherings or graduation parities. Speaking of graduations, would your food handling practices pass the test? Take the following "exam" and answer each of the following questions either True or False.

1. All meat should be cooked until no pink is visible in the center.

False. Steaks can be served very pink in the center or "medium rare" (145). However, all poultry and ground meats should be thoroughly cooked. Check burgers before serving by making a small slit in the center to be sure no pink color remains. Or use a quick-read thermometer to take the guesswork out of cooking. Internal temperature for ground beef patties should reach 160.

2. Regularly replenish side dishes such as potato salad by adding more from the refrigerator or cooler.

False. Fresh chilled food should not be mixed with food that has been at room temperature. Better to divide salads into small quantities and replace as necessary with new serving containers directly from the cooler. Discard side dishes that have been at room temperature for two hours, or less time if in outdoor heat.

3. Left-over meat marinade may be poured over the meat when served.

False. After marinating meat, either discard the marinade or boil it for at least one minute before using it for cooked food, or set aside a portion before adding the meat.

4. Frozen ground beef patties should go directly from the freezer to the grill.

False. In order to be sure homemade patties are evenly and thoroughly cooked, they should be completely thawed before cooking. Defrost in the refrigerator or use the microwave if the food is going right to the grill. Never thaw at room temperature.

5. You can use the same platter for raw and cooked meat and poultry so long as you wipe the juices off with a paper towel.

False. Put cooked meat and poultry on a clean platter, not the raw meat platter. All cooking utensils (and hands!) should be thoroughly washed with soap and hot water after coming into contact with raw meat.

6. Mayonnaise is the chief food poisoning villain at picnics and barbecues.

False. Because of its high acid content, store-bought mayonnaise actually slows bacterial growth. However, protein foods such as meat, poultry or eggs are highly perishable at room temperature. So keep your salads in a cooler or on ice.

7. Safety-savvy outdoor chefs bring at least two ice-filled coolers to picnics.

True. Because the beverage cooler is opened frequently, food experts recommend using a separate cooler for food to be sure it remains safely chilled.

How was your report card? If you answered all seven questions correctly, give yourself an "A". You may now proceed to the back yard and fire up the grill. If you answered any questions incorrectly, more study is recommended.

It's YOUR Money

SWAPS

Most American homeowners are familiar with tax laws that encourage home ownership and let an individual roll over the gain on one piece of residential property into the purchase of another, more expensive property. As long as certain rules are met, any taxes are deferred until the owner sells his or her last house. Wait until age 55, and there is a one - time exclusion of $125,000 in gains which may be increased under new tax proposals. The rules are different for commercial or investment property, say a vacation home you bought to rent out. Generally, any profit or loss is declared on each sale; gains are taxable while losses can offset any other gains. But there is a way out. By swapping one property for another investment of like or greater value, it is possible to defer taxes indefinitely. The basis in the new property is equal to the basis in the old property. This is not a do - it - yourself project; timing and other details are crucial. Check with your tax advisor.

Towns blame state for incinerator woes, seek cash

By DAVE HOWLAND
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — It seemed like a great idea at the time.

With landfill space growing scarce and power costs expected to rise, 23 towns in northeastern Massachusetts agreed to invest in a garbage incinerator. The plant would take care of the trash and help pay for itself with the electricity it produces.

But a decade later, town officials say they were forced into a "ludicrous" deal. They are demanding the state help defray costs of upgrading the incinerator.

Meeting with a group of lawmakers at the Statehouse on Monday, representatives from Arlington, Winchester and Lexington complained that the plant's high costs are threatening their budgets and basic services such as police, public works and libraries.

The nearly 500,000 residents of the towns that own and use the incinerator, including Wilmington and Tewksbury, already pay more than $90 a ton, twice the state average for waste disposal.

The costs could double again under the burden of paying for the plant's construction and installing federally-required "scrubbers" to cut back air pollution from the plant, according to the North East Solid Waste Committee, which represents the communities.

"The only thing we can see is a tremendous debt to pay off and the only way we can survive is to have help, both state and federal," said Bob McQuade, Andover's public works director.

They might get some.

On Wednesday, the state's Natural Resources Committee will consider a proposal for a bond to cover up to $22 million to help with the cost of pollution controls at the North Andover plant.

Fargo said lawmakers have proposed adding $4.5 million to the 1998 budget to distribute between the towns. They are also considering an investigation into the incinerator's high costs.

Some environmentalists cautioned the money would be wasted on a private company that runs the plant and added it would be better spent on a cleaner alternative: recycling.

Incinerators were supposed to solve the problem of leaky landfills and rising electricity costs.

But a decade later, many landfills have not been closed and are used by towns to dispose of waste cheaply. In addition, the economic downturn in the early 1990s drove down the value of electricity as the demand for power dropped.

As a result, the incinerator's power is worth less and the 23 towns are stuck with higher trash bills, North Andover Town Administrator Bob Halpin said. Worse yet, he said, the plant will belong to Wheelabrator when the town's contract expires in 2005.

Halpin said a $160 million debt to pay for the plant's construction spread between the towns could force them to extend the contract.

Arlington Town Manager Donald Marquis said the towns were not given a choice by the state when they signed the contact with Wheelabrator.

"I felt like I had a gun to my head," he said. "We have been paying and paying and paying for doing the right thing."

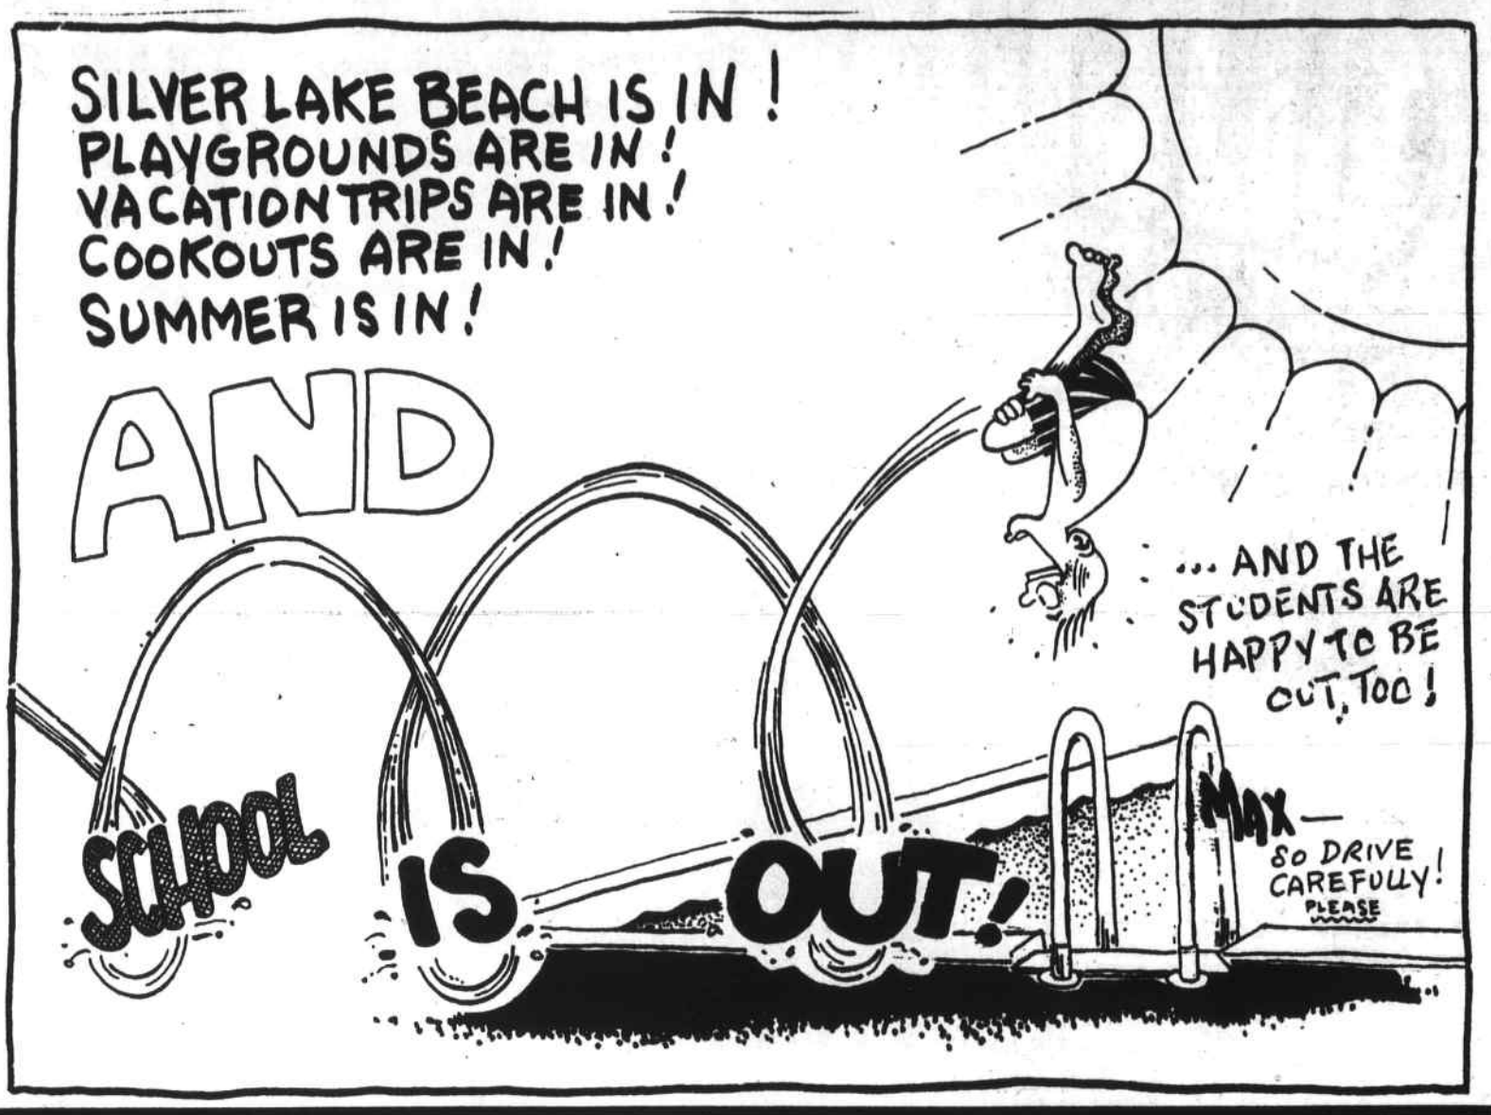

Rep. Barry Finegold, D-Andover, who hosted the meeting with Sen. Susan Fargo, D-Lincoln, said he hopes the Legislature approves the $22 million request.

"I think this is an issue of fairness that the state back in the early 1980s forced us into the contract, which turned out to be a very bad deal," said Finegold.

But environmentalists said given the pollution created by incinerators, the state would be better off spending its money on recycling.

Eric Weltman of the Toxics Action Center, a non-profit group that supports local activists who are opposed to the plant, said the money spent upgrading the incinerator could instead help keep trash out of landfills and pollutants out of the air.

Last year, a Department of Environmental Protection report found that the North Andover incinerator is the state's largest single source of mercury pollution. Members of the Merrimack Valley Environmental Coalition, a group of local environmentalists, have said they want the plant closed when its contract expires in 2005.

Food pantry needs, donations increased

Dear Larz:

The Tewksbury Community Pantry has been very active during the past few months. The Pantry has recently seen an increase in the number of people needing food in our community. We presently give food to 120 people on a monthly basis, up from about 100 people. The letter carriers held a food drive for the Pantry on May 10 and our volunteers are still sorting the large amount of food the postal workers collected for us. It is exciting to see progress being made on our new, permanent building to house the Pantry. The walls of the new building have been put up and the day of completion is nearer!

In our last announcement, we listed donors as of February 15, 1997. There have been many additional contributors to the Pantry's Building Fund. Anyone wishing to help our effort may send contributions to the Tewksbury Community Pantry Building Fund, 139 Pleasant Street, Tewksbury, MA 01876. All gifts are welcome and needed. The board of directors gratefully acknowledges the donation of money, labor or building materials from the following supporters, which includes donors from February 15 to June 2, 1997.

Healthy participation welcome

Dear Larz:

I write in response to Catherine and Daniel Woodbury's remarks in "An assault on school property?," dated June 18, 1997. The Woodbury's missed the point about Dr. Marlene Ross' concerns about interfering parents. As I interpret it, Dr. Ross was indicting parents who go beyond healthy participation in children's education, which she clearly illustrated in the parental requests to corrupt her established grading system and attempts to reduce assignment requirements for students absent from classroom instructional time.

I have been a middle school educator in a neighboring town for a decade, and I witness Dr. Ross' frustrations on a daily basis. Buying candy bars, raffle tickets,or wrapping paper does not ensure successful education, nor will it foster a respect for learning by our community. Is homework a priority in most homes? Are students at all levels held accountable to standards of excellence, foremost in the home?

Do families convene at the dinner table to discuss the school day's events? I hope so! Only then will the quality of our educational system progress. A $26,000,000.00 debt exclusion offers no guarantees for effectiveness!

Incidentally, the Woodbury's obviously have no idea of the difficulties educators face in initiating or changing administrative policy. Massachusetts teachers possess many advanced degrees and extensive pedagogical training and experience yet the general public boldly feels it is better equipped to educate our youth. I wonder if the Woodbury's are compelled to oversee their surgeon's practice. After all, they "pay his salary."

In closing, if a teacher cannot freely and publicly speak out on issues, then we are all condemned to wallow in the very mediocrity,that by her outspokenness, Dr. Ross is trying to oppose.

Sincerely,
Susan Rogers

Stolen cross

Dear Larz:

Broken hearts - This is an open letter to the individual(s) who took a handmade oak cross and heart from Wildwood Cemetery this past week.

The person(s) who took this five foot handmade oak cross may have thought of it as a joke, a prank, something funny to do. On the contrary, you have hurt a family in a very deep emotional way. There are no words to comfort my widowed mother-in-law. It's difficult enough to have to grieve the loss of a loved one without having to be upset by petty thievery.

My husband was extremely proud of his masterpiece, a tribute to his dad, now gone to satisfy someone's temptations. Please put an end to this prank and return the cross to the cemetery office so they may contact its rightful owners or call 658-3362 and tell us where we can pick it up.

Jean Labrecque

Residents deserve thanks

Dear Larz:

As we complete the 1996-97 school year of the Wilmington Public Schools, it is timely and fitting that we give thanks to the Wilmington community for all your support. We hope you share our sense of success and accomplishment in what has been achieved during the school year:

*Implementation of a long term space needs solution with the support of the town for a $25,000,000 middle school building project which will have a positive impact on class size and provide a state of the art facility.

*Implementation of a short-term space needs solution for the next three years with improvements in class size ratios.

*A technology plan approved by the Department of Education, a new technology coordinator, and additional hardware and software which will be delivered to the schools in August.

*Major accomplishments in curriculum and staff development including a professional development committee, new textbook adoptions in middle school math, reading, and language arts, and new textbooks for all the departments at the high school; a continued commitment for training by Research for Better Teaching, and the completion by more than half of the staff in the course "Understanding Teaching."

*Good trend indicators for student achievement in data from both the Stanford Achievement Test and the Iowa Test.

*Successful fund raising campaign of the Wilmington Educational Foundation for the installation of a new microcomputer-based lab in the science department at the high school.

*The hiring of 18 additional staff members and the design of professional leadership opportunities in study groups, mentoring, and internships.

*Continued emphasis on the importance of parental involvement and community partnerships.

The beliefs that are the bedrock of our mission and Strategic Plan state our commitment to providing our students, parents, and the Wilmington community with a quality education. Together we are making that happen and we anticipate even greater success in the 1997-98 school year.

Very truly yours,
Geraldine A.O'Donnell, Ed.D
Superintendent of Schools

Soon they'll be welding on the leaves

BILLERICA: Metal fabrication students at Shawsheen Tech are adding a tree to the school landscape - a tree made of metal, but with a life like design.

Under the direction of John Russo of Wilmington, longtime metal sculptor now working as a teacher's aide at Shawsheen, students used their skills in cutting metal and electric arc welding to create the tree design by Russo.

"We tried to get everyone to work on it," says Russo, who enjoys introducing students to the more creative aspects of metal fabrication. One ninth grader, Peter Hughes of Billerica, designed a branch, which Russo says takes a lot of planning and creativity. "He did an excellent job and has a lot of talent," said the teacher.

Foliage will be welded to the tree as a fund raiser for student activities. In the fall, people can purchase leaves with their name engraved; students will weld the leaves on. The final "planting" place for the structure has yet to be determined but the mall area, near the bakery and cosmetology shop, is one potential site Nearby is a metal ram, Shawsheen's mascot, created by Russo five years ago.

Mr. Rudenko was a member of the New England export Expansion Council, member and past president of the Foreign Commerce Club of Boston, and long life member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. He was a published author of many articles for various trade magazines and was an avid golfer who enjoyed playing at courses throughout New England. Mr. Rudenko was a resident of Wilmington for 15 years before moving to Concord in December, 1996.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by his son and daughter-in-law, Peter and Joan Rudenko and two grandchildren, Mark and Beth Rudenko, all of Boxborough; three sisters, Irene Brown of Saugus, Elizabeth Iannacci of Stoneham and Anastasia Palmer of South Pasadena, Florida.

Summer reading gets a boost

WILMINGTON - Hundreds of residents went to the town common on a beautiful summer evening to celebrate their library! Flashing lights and blaring sirens announced the arrival of Dorothy, the Cowardly Lion, and Sparky the Fire Dog on Wilmington Fire Department's new Engine 2. Children patiently waited in line to sign up for the Summer Reading Club. According to the Children's Department Guest Book, 270 youngsters registered during the evening's celebration.

Volunteers Mary Lunetta and Lorraine Waterman helped children craft colorful summer tossers that could be seen flying around the common during the evening. At the tattoo and face painting table, Dorothy Wiberg, Gloria and Jen Corcoran, Danielle Hodgson, Charlotte Hauray, and Barbara Cook created favorite fantasies on many faces and arms.

Numerous residents enjoyed punch and Dunkin Donut munchkins. Many stopped by the Friends of the Library membership table and entered the drawing for the prizes provided by the Friends.

Residents discovered the many resources and services available at the library at the information table where staff answered questions and provided booklists and handouts.

Thank you to all the individuals and organizations, especially the following who contributed to the success of the June 19 Library Celebration:

WHAT REALLY WORKS TO SELL YOUR HOUSE?

If you are trying to sell your home quickly, some Realtors may recommend that you offer a bonus to the agent who brings in the buyer. They feel that a monetary incentive will cause Realtors to push your house over the one down the street. Do such bonuses work?

You cannot expect a bonus to sell an overpriced house or overcome housekeeping shortcomings that detract from your home's overall appeal. If your house looks great and is priced right, offering a bonus to the Realtor could help it sell quicker. Realtors earn their reputations by helping people find homes that they love. When deciding which homes to show prospective buyers, their decision will be based on whether the home will meet their needs. If the Multiple Listing Service indicates that a bonus is being offered, it could encourage more agents to preview the house and result in more showings.

Healing and Recovering Together

By CHARLOTTE COOPER and FRANK AMATO

Compared to other major drug treatment programs, methadone treatment for heroin (diacetylmorphine) addicts has yielded promising results keeping addicts heroin free. As a five-year methadone treatment pilot project funded by the federal Center For Substance Abuse Treatment, H.A.R.T. House seeks to offer parenting and life skills, continual access to primary health care and other social services necessary for the recovery of opiate addicted women and their families.

H.A.R.T. House (Healing And Recovering Together), is located on the Tewksbury Hospital campus. "The State provides the building but otherwise the project is entirely Federally funded, including the research. It's been open for about a year now. Part of the goal was to find out if women would stay in treatment longer if they were with their children, and if treatment lasted longer, would it work better," says Gabrielle Dean, Director of H.A.R.T. House. "We're also part of the Center For Addictive Behavior, which has been doing various kinds of treatment for drug and alcohol involved families. They've done residential treatment in Lynn for about 24 years now," she added.

While there is no best way to quit heroine, at proper doses methadone lets addicts function normally without the very painful withdrawal symptoms, and it can be safely used, even for decades, with few adverse reactions. "We're part of a national evaluation of the methadone program which will compare our research and pool together all the research about this program. It's really an instruction on how to get sober and how to stay sober. We have really good demographic information and hopefully that will give us information about what treatment works and what doesn't for kids and families," says Dean.

"We have 12 women here now, and the children number around 20. Each mother has one to three children with them. The mothers have a room and they share it with their infants if the kids are under a year. Older children have rooms across the hall from their mothers." H.A.R.T. House involves the families of the residents whenever possible, and family members who need treatment can be enrolled simultaneously in the other treatment programs, such as the Nichols Program, on the site. "Residents stay between six months and one year. Our goal is to be a nine month program," Dean said.

"All of the women who were addicted to heroine when they came here are now on methadone," Dean said. If they are on drugs, pregnant women are also endangering the fetus, and fetuses risk is greater because it cannot handle addiction like an adult. "Many women are maintained with methadone during their pregnancy, and since we take women with children, we take them after their baby is born," Dean adds. The infant is then sent to a hospital for detoxification.

"The children go to day care for a very typical, structured day care day. They have a morning session, nap time, lunch, the usual. The mothers also have a very structured day. They have a group from 9:30 to 11 which includes varied topics such as recovery, and parenting. We also use resources from the outside such as vocational programs and nutrition," Dean says. At lunch time the mothers have an AA or NA meeting on the site, and usually attend an afternoon group session which covers women's issues. "We have women that go from not having a role in their kid's life to being an aggravated parent, which is a typical emotion of many parents. A mother of three is going to have a lot of stress," Dean says. The mothers and their children play together from 3 to 5 in the afternoon. "What we're trying to give them is a very structured day and a general real feel for recovery." Dean added.

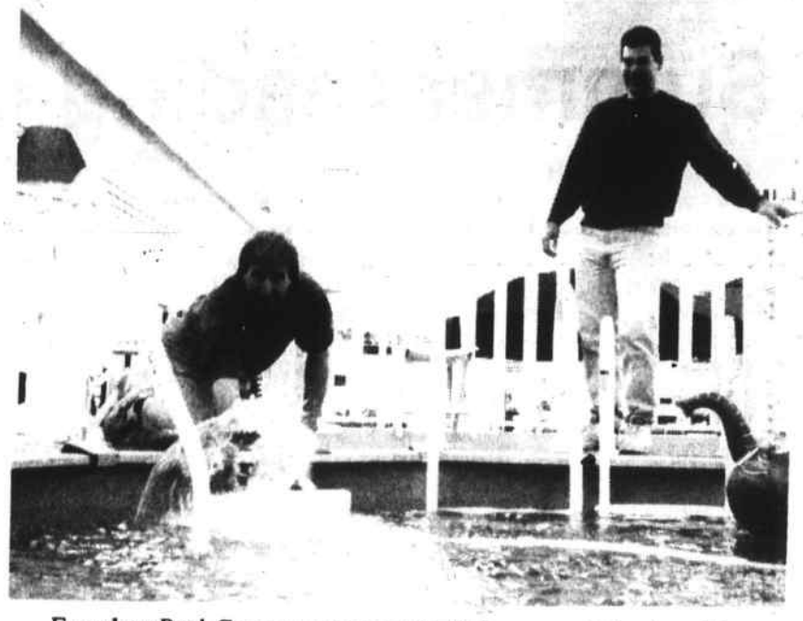

"In the evening, they appoint a baby-sitter and go with the staff to an outside meeting." The chore duties are shared and given on a rotating basis; someone will be the cook for the week, someone will clean the halls, someone does the bathrooms. They all eat family style: the family sits at the table and the meal is served at the table. Even though the building and its style is really an institutional setting, we try to imitate as much of a family environment as we can," says Dean.

"People who graduate from our program go on to their own apartment or go back to the one they left. A few of our alumni come back here to do volunteer and community service work," says Dean. "One of the major problems that we run into about the people who have been drug involved, is that often they have not had great relationships with housing. Once you have a bad reputation, it's hard to find somewhere else to live," Dean adds.

"Our graduation rate is about 50%. Right now all our graduates are in recovery programs and we maintain contact with them after they leave here. Sometimes it's hard to find some of them, especially the ones who leave early. The people who leave because they don't want to be in treatment yet, or because of some other reason, are the hardest to track," Dean says. Some of the graduates are still on methadone and will have to visit treatment centers each day to received their dosage. Some are completely drug free. Support groups on site and recovery programs in other locations allow H.A.R.T. House to keep in contact with the former residents. "We have an alumni support group here and one of our alumni is now a volunteer," Dean adds.

"We have 17 staff on the payroll; 2 social workers, a family therapist, day care staff and a director. Our goal is to become sustainable by billing, receiving grants, and by working with foundations. Foundations are very interested in working with children and finding out what works for children. We've also gotten incredible support from the community. We've received donations of food, toys, furniture and other wonderful things," says Dean.

"Over the course of our first year of operation, we served 24 women and their children," Dean says. The women in the program are referred from other treatment programs, from the Department of Social Services, and courts. Right now they have a waiting list of 34, which may mean that the last people on the list have a waiting period of up to one year.

The existing bill allows consumers to return containers to such centers for a five cent refund. The redemption center then sorts, stores, and ships the recyclable containers to the distributors for a small profit acquired through a handling fee. Originally, the redemption centers received two cents as a handling fee per can or bottle, until 1988, when the Executive Office of Environmental Affairs(EOEA) raised the fee for the first and only time to 2.25 cents.

However, the existing handling fee hardly covers the cost of delivery, employee payrolls, and the skyrocketing increase in packaging materials.

Robert Proctor, owner of Tewksbury Redemption and three other similar facilities, explained that a case of glass bottles normally brings a 54 cent refund, in addition, a 20 cent shipping box must be purchased from the distributor before it is returned, gnawing away at an already slim profit margin.

"There's virtually no profit in it. We can't box it and ship it back to where it came from for 34 cents a case," said Proctor.

Furthermore, distributors have increased their stranglehold on the state's centers by requesting that returns be delivered to more remote facilities in Avon and Hudson, although there are several distributors within the local area.

"There's nothing we can do about it. There's nobody to call. If you say anything , they make it hard on you," Proctor said.

The proposed new bottle bill, which is presently tied up in a committee, would hike the redemption centers' handling fee to three cents, greatly improving their chances for survival.

"Normally, when they assign a bill to a committee, it usually dies in the committee. If it went to three cents we might be able to stay in business. But, it won't go into effect until July 1998, which will kill most of the centers by then. It's a whole year away," Keogan said.

Another aspect of the current bill owners oppose is the policy regarding unclaimed deposits.

After winning a 1990 court decision, Massachusetts acquired the rights to all unclaimed deposits.

Prior to the ruling, redemption centers were allowed to retain the profits from these unclaimed containers, which have been estimated between 16 and $23 million annually. Massachusetts' bottle bill is currently the only in the nation to permit the state to keep such funds.

Keogan asserted that this annual sum is being misused and is presently funding toxic waste cleanups.

"To me, it should be going to help redemption centers . But it doesn't seem to be going that way. Each (can or bottle) thrown away is another nickel in the state's pocket, " said Keogan.

If the bill is passed, the commonwealth would be required to return 30 percent of the unclaimed deposits to the redemption centers. This would be achieved by funneling the money through the proposed handling fee increase.

To combat the crippling effect of the present statute, some redemption centers have responded by paying customers only four cents per container to compensate for revenue lost to the inert handling fee.

Although the Massachusetts Attorney General's office has yet to decide whether or not this reduced refund is legal, most redemption centers are reluctant to resort to this questionable practice fearing paybacks may be ordered in the future.

Until the fate of the new bill is decided, Keogan and Proctor continue to take the necessary precautions to keep their businesses alive. They have cutback on staff, residential pick-ups, and hours of operation. A hand-lettered sign taped to Wilmington Redemption's door reads:"Open Saturday 9 AM Until ???"

"We used to be open all the time. Now we can't be. I used to help the old people in town by going to their houses (for pick-ups), but I can't do it anymore," Keogan said.

It remains to be seen what lasting effects these closings will have on the cities and towns of Massachusetts. Though many foresee an increase in litter, which was, ironically, the target of the bill when it was adopted in 1983. Facilities like Tewksbury's and Wilmington's have been effective in reducing the amount of litter by accepting bulk quantities of containers that are often discarded and later collected for refund.

"When I got into this, it was profitable. Now it's terrible. Like anyone else, we've got bills to pay. We just try to make adjustments. Our costs keep rising, but we have no way of covering them. The whole thing is chaos," said Proctor.

Story teller to visit Wilmington library

WILMINGTON - Wilmington Memorial Library will present storyteller Davis Bates and singer Roger Tincknell in a program of stories and songs that celebrates diversity and honors the library's summer reading program's theme "Celebration." This program will involve the audience, through song and story, in a wide variety of cultural traditions. It will include stories from Native American traditions of New England, Oral History narratives and family stories and songs and sing alongs from both native and immigrant traditions and cultures.

Davis Bates and Roger Tincknell have four decades of combined experience performing for families in community settings throughout the northeast. Davis and Roger are known both for their strong vocal harmonies and for their warm and participatory performing style. Both have received Parents Choice awards for their most recent recordings. Davis won a Gold Award for Family Stories (which was also named one of the year's 10 best audio recordings by Booklist Magazine), and Roger an Honor award for Earth Rhythms: an environmental album.

Pete Seeger has called Davis "thoughtful, creative, human, and a fantastic storyteller." His traditional style of telling is a refreshing change from videos and passive televised entertainment, empowering and encouraging audiences of all ages to join in the fun, and to take the stories home with them to share with others. Davis also encouraged listeners to remember and tell stories from their own families and cultural traditions.

Roger Tincknell is an accomplished musician, singer,and song writer, whose concerts include a wide variety of guitar styles, as well as banjo, mandolin, bazouki, harmonic and piano playing. His repertoire ranges from sensitive love song ballads to fiddle tunes, country and swing songs, blues and show stopping yodeling.

"Under One Sky: A Multi-Cultural celebration" is designed to appeal to all ages. Admission is free but advanced tickets are required and can be obtained at the library beginning Monday, June 30. The program will take place in the library's conference room on Friday, June 11, starting at 7 p.m. Please note that only the conference room will be open for this event and the library will be closed for regular service as it normally is on Friday night. Entrance to the program will be at the library's front entrance on Middlesex Avenue. Be sure not to miss this wonderful family.

This performance is made possible, in part,by a grant from the Wilmington Arts Council, a local agency, which is supported by the Massachusetts Cultural Council, a state agency.

Wilmington woman celebrates five years

Winning the battle with breast cancer

By Kevin Maher

WILMINGTON - This past February marked a special, yet painful anniversary for Peggy Graham and family. The mother of Ryan and Megan marks her calender at five years of living after a bout with breast cancer. She is a determined, and hopeful woman striving for her future times ahead with friends and family. At the same time she can never forget the battles she has trampled behind.

The world of breast cancer was first introduced to the Wilmington family through a routine self-exam several years ago. Peggy visited her local physician in concern after finding lump in her breast. Upon getting a medical evaluation a second lump was discovered, putting her in need of immediate medical attention. What she was unprepared for was the long, and often frightening road ahead.

In the early years of the 1990's, breast cancer research was for the most part just beginning, and little information on the disease was supplied by the media. Peggy's introduction was nothing less than a "culture shock," of which she would undergo two frightening operations. The first was done by a local surgeon, who apparently had a difficult time killing the disease. Peggy was quickly rushed into another surgery, only one month later. This time she underwent a mastectomy in order to stop the growth within her breasts. It was a procedure that seemed negative, but was necessary to save her young life.

At the Leahy Clinic in Burlington, Peggy received the well attended care she needed in her vulnerable state. At the time the Leahy Breast Cancer Clinic was relatively new, and experimental. Under a team of doctor's, counselors, and surgeons Peggy was given a armor of medical treatment to help her in her fight for life.

One of her biggest fears came true with the onslaught of chemotherapy soon after the operation. The horror stories she had heard prior to receiving the therapy were enough to make her want to go without. The medication brought on nausea, and terrible insomnia. Luckily, she did not lose her hair, which often happens. Her recovery under the therapy was a slow, but eventual process.

The unpleasant chemotherapy was enough to push Peggy into early menopause. Between fighting off cancer, and dealing with a major body change, Peggy had a tough first year. Still, she managed to get the courage to return to working at her job as a Child Development Teacher at Arlington High School. One of the main reasons for her strength was all the support she was given by friends, family, co-workers, and even strangers.

Through the advice of her doctor's at the Leahy Clinic, Peggy joined a support group for survivors of breast cancer. At first she was hesitant, but later found the experience highly rewarding. "I became very close with the women in the group. They were very supportive. In fact, everyone has been supportive; from my husband, to my 76 year old mother."

Five out of the seven women in Peggy's support group are still survivors of breast cancer. The odds are a lot higher for any woman when the disease is detected early. The rate of breast cancer continues to grow in women of all ages. A regular check up might slow down the process. There is still a lot unknown about breast cancer, and how to fight it. Many organizations are growing together to try and raise money for the killer.

In September, Peggy will run with all five of her sisters in "the Race for the Cure" in downtown Boston. It is Peggy's fifth year running for breast cancer. This year she is hoping to raise $500, as a symbol for the life she has been given. According to Peggy, "every year since I've run it has been in someone else's memory. This year it is in celebration of me." She has a lot to be grateful for, and a lot to live for.

Speaking in front of young women recently diagnosed is something that keeps Peggy going. She understands what they might be feeling, and what questions they might have better than anyone. It is important to her that no one goes through the fight alone. While ignorance to the disease gave Peggy a hard and frightening road of recovery, she can state at least one positive thing about the entire incident. With her family more aware now of the dangers of breast cancer, every woman in the Graham clan have become experts in the field. Peggy says with a smile, "if (my disease) could help them to not go through what I went through, than at least something positive came out of it all."

Saving lives for 10 years

BURLINGTON - In the past 10 years, countless lives have been saved by the North Suburban Emergency Medical Consortium, an organization that recently celebrated its first decade of providing advanced life support (ALS) to the area. This year alone paramedics responded to more than 11,000 calls, treating more than 4,000 patients.

"The provision of advanced life support is really an extension of the Emergency Department to the street, the home and the workplace," notes Lahey Hitchcock Medical Center emergency physician Michael Erdos, M.D., Consortium Medical Director and Region IV EMS Medical Director. "There have been a significant number of pre-hospital 'saves' during our tenure here, as well as the stabilization and initiation of treatment in many cases well before hospital arrival."

The Consortium, comprised of Lahey Hitchcock Medical Center, Symmes Hospital and Medical Center, Winchester Hospital and Armstrong Ambulance Service, provides paramedic level, pre-hospital care to 12 cities and towns including Wilmington. The population served by the Consortium is over 300,000.

The Consortium began in November, 1986 with just one vehicle serving the area. Now, four vehicles, each staffed by two paramedics, are available to respond within eight minutes anywhere in the service area.

This service is provided in close cooperation with each municipal basic life support (BLS) rescue service, and in most cases, the BLS transporting ambulance arrives within four minutes of dispatch. Together, BLS and ALS personnel provide an extension of the hospitals' emergency services, with emergency physicians directing patient care via direct radio communication. This care is guided by regional Paramedic Treatment Protocols, developed and defined over the past 10 years.

Clinical oversight for this program is provided by Consortium ALS Coordinator Sharon Romano, R.N., EMT-P, of Lahey Hitchcock Medical Center, and Mark Saia, EMT-P, ALS Supervisor for Armstrong Ambulance.

"We have always incorporated new treatment modalities into our practice, such as the initiation in September 1996 of performing pre-hospital 12 lead electrocardiograms, which provide early identification of heart attack victims. This allows potentially life saving treatment to be initiated as soon as possible," Romano explains. The close working relationship with the municipal BLS services has also resulted in the development of other life saving programs such as semi-automatic defibrillation for cardiac arrest, and the EpiPen Auto-Injector program for anaphylaxis (from allergic reactions).

Administrative oversight for the Consortium is provided by administrative and physician representatives from the three hospitals, Armstrong Ambulance, and fire chiefs from three of the participating cities/towns. LHMC Vice President of Hospital Operations Pamela Corradino chairs the Consortium as well as the Regional EMS Advisory Council, which helps set policy for EMS care throughout eastern Mass.

"This program clearly demonstrates how communities can benefit through public and private interests working cooperatively. Everyone who has been involved with the development and ongoing support of the Consortium deserves our thanks and congratulations. We truly have a system of which we should be extremely proud."

O'Rourke said half-jokingly, referring to the small shrimp-like endangered creature found in the East Woburn portion of the Aberjona River, making it a protected habitat.

"From one person sitting here, I am ecstatic," Marlowe said of the news of the bid process. "It has been a long, long, long road."

If the bid is in fact awarded within the next few weeks, Marlowe said the construction firm, which remained unidentified until the awarding of the bid becomes official, is ready to go and construction could start as soon as Labor Day.

Marlowe said he believed the company met all the specifications in the contract and thus all that apparently remains is the state wetland variance.

Previous schedules have set the completion date for late 1998 if work starts this fall on the new interchange.

The interchange, on the drawing board for years, is a cooperative effort with the state, the WRA, and the two organizations overseeing the remediation and sale of the Industri-Plex land.

Wilmington Senior Topics

WILMINGTON - The cost of prescription medications is becoming so expensive many senior citizens are having a difficult time paying for them. As a result, they are not taking the prescribed dosage given by their doctor. They hope to stretch the number of pills to last longer, before having the prescription refilled. This procedure can be dangerous to your health and slow down your recovery.

There are several programs you may qualify for that can help with prescription medicines.

Unicare, 1-800-438-2014 has a mail order up to 70 percent off prescriptions. It also offers savings on medical supplies and equipment such as a wheel chair. They will bill Medicare for Medicare's approved part of the cost. Many pharmacies are participants in this program. Club or group memberships may be required. Check with the Chamber of Commerce for the names of Wilmington clubs and drug stores participating in this program, or call the above toll free number for more information.

American Legion offers the RX America 1-800-905-9818 program. You may have to be a member of the American Legion. For the names of participating drug stores in our area call the toll free number. This program gives a saving of 20 to 40 percent on all prescriptions.

Medscript 1-800-279-3784 gives a saving of 20 to 80 percent and you can order up to a year's supply.

Many pharmaceutical companies offer free medications to individuals who cannot pay. Contact the pharmaceutical company that makes your particular medications. Ask if your medication is offered free; if it is, ask for the procedure for applying. Some companies require the doctor to apply. Others will mail the application to the patient. If you do not know the name of the pharmaceutical company that manufactures your medication, ask your pharmacist or doctor.

AARP has a mail in program giving 20 to 50 percent discount on prescription medications. You do not have to be a member to participate in the program. Call 1-800-456-2277 for more information.

The price of prescriptions vary from pharmacy to pharmacy. You should shop for one that is fair and capable of assisting you if it is helping with over the counter medications or prescription drugs. A good pharmacist will explain drugs and food interactions, will be alert for unnecessary or duplicated prescriptions from health care providers. Take advantage of his/her expertise. It will be to your benefit. Try to use the same pharmacy. In this way a record will be kept for all your prescriptions.

The quest for the Commissioner's Cup

This past weekend at the Shawsheen Elementary School Fields and at Shawsheen Tech, Wilmington Youth Soccer hosted the Commissioner's Cup for the Middlesex Youth Soccer league. And what a terrific weekend it was!

The tournament is the annual spring championship for the best teams in the Middlesex league to compete for two days to be crowned the Commissioner's Cup Champion. The tournament for the past two years has been held in Woburn, with it returning to Wilmington this year.

The League is comprised of approximately 450 teams from the surrounding communities of Billerica, Burlington, Concord Carlisle, Everett, Hanscom, Lincoln, Lowell, Malden, Medford, Melrose, North Reading, Reading, Somerville, Stoneham, Tewksbury, Wakefield, Waltham, Westford, Wilmington, Winchester and Woburn. Each team competes for 10 weeks in the spring in either boys or girls brackets at the Under 10, Under 10 or Under 14 age group. The participants in this weekend's cup action were the division winners in their groupings.

The Commissioner's Cup action this past weekend saw 83 teams compete in 126 games. There were approximately 1200 players playing on eight fields at various times during the two day event. Add to that number coaches, parents, grandparents and siblings for the players on each team and that equals a lot of soccer fans gathered in one place.

In addition to the participants, there were 16 Middlesex League Commissioners, 13 Wilmington Youth Soccer Board of Directors, 28 referees and 25 to 30 volunteers working, including many Wilmington Youth Soccer players and parents to assist in the smooth running of the event.

Wilmington Youth Soccer was well represented at the Cup with nine teams qualifying for post season play. Congratulations to the Boys Under 14A team, Boys Under 11A team, Boys Under 9C team, Girls Under 14B team, Girls Under 12A team, Girls Under 10A team, Girls Under 10C team, Girls Under 9A team, Girls Under 9B team and the new spring team, Girls Under 10-6 team.

Each of these teams participated in two to three games, plus a final, to hopefully be crowned Commissioner's Cup Champion. All are champions in their own right by making the Commissioner's Cup.

Special congratulations to the Girls Under 10A team who won the Under 10 Division 1 title; the Girls Under 12A team who won the Under 12 Division 2 title; the Boys Under 11A team, who won the finalist trophy for the Under 12 Division 2 title; the Girls Under 10C team who won the finalist trophy for Under 10 Division 3; and the Girls Under 10-6 team who had to settle for the finalist trophy after playing double overtime and losing a shoot-out for the Division 4 crown.

Wilmington will also be represented by two teams at the Massachusetts State Soccer Association "Tournament of Champions," this coming weekend in Springfield. The Girls Under 14A and the Boys Under 12A will be competing for the Division 2 State titles and the Wilmington Youth Soccer Association wants to wish them the best of luck as they compete for those titles.

Wilmington's Division 1 U10 Girls Team captured the Middlesex League championship at Shawsheen Field on June 22. Alphabetically listed are teammates Erin Cahill, Celine Demaggio, Teresa DeSimone, Caitlin Foley, Julia Leverone, Debbie Lyons, Caitlin McNabb, Stephanie Ramsdell, Jackie Rideout, Nicole Sauve, Jacqueline Spry, and Christina Tocci and Coaches Debbie Dellascio, Alphonso DeSimone and Anthony Tocci.

Under 12 A boys team makes playoffs

After a long soccer season, the U12A boys had to travel to Medford to play a tough Medford United team on the last day of the season, June 14, 1997. This game would decide their fate, a loss would finish them for the year, a win would put them into the playoffs for the state tournament.

Medford scored first with a chip shot over the out stretched arms of keeper Dennis DiCenso. Wilmington had chances but could not put the ball past a determined Medford goalie. Offense rushes by Steven Gravallese. Tom Duffy, and Ryan Patrie kept Medford on their heels. Finally with under a minute to go in the first half, Keith Frongillo came down on the left side past all the Medford defenders, and blasted the ball past the goalie.

In the second half neither team gave ground, as play was kept in the middle of the field. John Bavota and Tom Doyle kept trying to push the ball ahead but could not. Finally with about 18 minutes to go Pat Souza was taken down in the Medford goal area for a Penalty Kick. Keith took the kick and blasted it past the Medford goalie, Wilmington was now up 2-1. After that the defense led by Mathew Goldblatt, Jordan Ungvarsky, Pat O'Shea and John Tobin made sure nothing else got close to Wilmington's goal. The final ended up 2-1 and Wilmington was on its way to the playoffs.

The semifinal game was played on June 17, 1997 against a strong Stoneham team. Stoneham scored first but this seemed to inspire Wilmington, Keith tied the game in the first half and put his second goal in early in the second to put Wilmington up 2-1. Stoneham kept the pressure up, but the outstanding play of mid-fielders Chad Paquin, Andrew Holland and Danny O'Connell kept Stoneham away. Late in the second half with a scramble in front of Wilmington goal Stoneham shot, it deflected off a body and past Dennis. Regulation ended 2-2, overtime was next. The Wildcats came out fast and scored two goals by John Bavota, and a third on Ryan's follow-up of a scramble in front of the Stoneham net. Stoneham kept pressing, but were able only to put n a late meaningless goal. Final score was Wilmington 5-3. It was off to the Middlesex finals against Wilmington U11A.

The final was played on June 19, 1997, a great game was played and the final 3-0 score was not indicative of the close game. Wilmington's U12A team was on its way to Springfield, MA on the last weekend of June for the State Tournament.

With a perfect season's record, the Wilmington Girls Under 10A soccer team played at the Shawsheen field June 21 and 22 to vie for the Commissioner's Cup.

The girls superb teamwork and incredible heart and dedication earned the division cup. Congratulations to all the girls!

In Saturday's first game, the girls faced off against Waltham and earned a 2-0 win. Waltham proved a worthy opponent with aggressive play and strong defense. Despite many Wilmington offensive forays, it wasn't until the first few minutes of the second half that Caitlin Foley's intense pressure broke open Waltham's defensive wall for the first goal.

Ten minutes later the last score was posted by Devvie Lyons off terrific playmaking by linemates Teresa DeSmione and Caitlin McNabb.

Later that afternoon Wilmington faced off against Billerica for the division championship and came up with winners' medals in a tight 1-0 match. Despite many Wilmington scoring opportunities, Billerica's goal keeping and defense were formidable. The Lady Wildcats persistence paid off when Billerica committed two successive handballs, setting up defender Jacqueline Spry for the free kicks. Jacqueline converted the game winning goal on her second attempt, aiming a powerful boot at shoulder height that boomed past the Billerica line.

Wilmington and Concord-Carlisle paired up Sunday morning and once again Wilmington prevailed, 1-0. Concord-Carlisle performed admirably and held the line until Caitlin McNabb skillfully wended her way through the entire defense, beating the keeper for the only goal of the game.

Sunday afternoon's championship game ended in a 1-0 Wilmington win over a tough Waltham team. Caitlin Foley pocketed the only goal of the game when Waltham committed two handballs in the 18th minute. On the second free kick, Caitlin's ball soared untouched to the back of the net.

Throughout the entire playoff weekend, the girls performed admirably. Offensive lines comprised of Nicole Sauve, Erin Cahill, Jackie Rideout, Teresa DeSomone, Caitlin McNabb and Debbie Lyons showed off their speed and solid passing skills. The Wildcats' superb defense thwarted the opponents with exceptional contributions by Celine Demaggio, Caitlin Foley, Julie Leverone, Jacqueline Spry and keeper Stephanie Ramsdell. Congratulations!

Pirates outslug Brewers, 16-7

Farm League
Pirates 16 Brewers 7

In a game against the high scoring Pirates, the Brewers fell short in Farm League play of another fun-filled week of Wilmington Little League.

Fine defensive plays by Jonathan Cullen stopped many ralies for the Pirates. The strong hitting of Danny Patterson and Dave Doucette helped the Pirates to the win.

The Brewers offense came alive on the bats of Steve Crowe and David Ballou who had three hits each. Jesse Belding made very fine defensive plays to stop rallies.

Royals 15 Brewers 4

Both teams scored in the first inning and then the Royals bats exploded on the hitting of James McGowan,who went 5-for-5 and Mike Wilson.

The Brewers tried to rally on the hitting of Josh Giroux, 3-for-3 and Peter DiBignoto three infield hits. Fine defensive plays by Brian Fahey and Steve DiTullio stopped many rallies.

Great catches were made by Matt Olson and Derek Flodin.

Rockies vs Expos

Plentyof runs in this one as the Expos outlasted the Rockies 22-15. For the Expos Derek Griffin and Alex Bourne led the offense with defensive support from Kyle Abel.

The Rockies were led by Joey Lomoscio on defense and Mike McCann on offense with Dan Cole showing support on both sides of the game.

Mets vs Angels

The Angels, sponsored by Sons of Italy, were too much for the D&D Lock Mets as they put on a hitting show that was powered by Tony Karalekas and Mike Stewart to carry their team to victory.

The Angels also had a grat night in the field with Chris Burns making some terrific plays time after time, and Morgan Farmer played a super game catching behind the plate for the Angels.

On the Mets team, Rick Fudge had a big day with the bat as did Matt Robinson. On the defensive side Nathan Clapp played a fantastic game, as did Philip Enos with a great job playing catcher for the Mets.

Mets vs Rockies

The D&D Lock sponsored Mets built up a big lead early in the game over the Rockies, then had to work hard to keep it as the Rockies came back to make it close.

The Mets win came with the overpowering bats of John Nickerson, Patrick Ryan and Joe Sheehan who all had five hits in the game. Defensively Matt Marden had an outstanding game, as did Matt Robinson, making several plays for the Mets.

The Rockies had plenty of hitting as well, with Brendan Gibson's triple and double 4-4 and Mike Barry with four hits. Defensively Katherine Holland and Scott Bransfield kept their team in the game with some super plays in the field for the Rockies.

Minor League
Giants vs Phillies

The MassBank for Savings Giants were led by the strong pitching of Chris Clark and Dan Tanzella. Great defensive plays by Keith Irving and Gary Philips and Victor Dell-Isola.

Offensive power by Jared Nims (HR), Misha Glazomitsky and Craig Gil was great.

Mike Broussard did a good job behind the plate and contributed two base hits as well. Marshall Nevin looked good on the mound; Joe Silva turned in two hits and Pat Fleck was strong at second.

A tie at nine

The Liberty Air Express Mets defense came on strong with pitching lead by Bobby Crowe. The Mets struck first on the scoreboard with superb hitting led by Brad Fraser and Matt Cox.

The Wilmington Rotary Club's Rockies struck back in the top of the next inning with excellent hitting by Rich Buckley, to get three runs before the Mets defense closed them down, with great fielding by Ryan Maguire.

In the bottom of the inning the Mets took the lead back by excellent hitting from Cory Calway. The Rockies' defense shut down the Mets offense with excellent pitching by Steve Peterson and Tim Sughrue as catcher. The Rockies' offense battled back with a rally in the last two innings to tie the game; Mets 9, Rockies 9.

Cubs 17 Mets 4

The Liberty Air Express Mets defense led by Rich Cummings, Bobby Crowe and Chris Winn came out strong at the start o fthe game holding the Acmem Printing Co. Cubs with a doubleplay.

The Mets htting through the game was led by Mike Cullen, Matt Cox and Rich Cunnings. The Cubs offense proved too much for the Mets defense with excellent hitting by Ryan Curtis and Chris Gardner. The Cubs defense, led by Dustin Cole's fielding would keep the Mets at bay for the rest of the game, ending it at Cubs 17, Mets 4.

Major League
Twins 9 Orioles 5

The Twins (sponsored by Cavanaugh & Sons Funeral Home) defeated the Orioles (sponsored by Royal Dynasty) in the first game of the playoffs by the score of 9-5.

The underdog Twins scored early and often, forcing the Orioles to play catchup. For the Twins, pitcher Mike Robar pitched into the fifth inning before tiring and leaving the bases loaded.

Relief pitcher Derek Truiera came in and got the out and finished the game. Andy Berian had three hits for the Twins and Billy Sinopoli had two, one a homerun for the Birds. Trueira and James O'Neal each scored two runs. Jim Muise had a triple to drive in two runs.

Yankees 5 Indians 1

In the second round of the playoffs, the Rocco's Restaurant Yankees defeated the Wilmington Builders Supply Indians behind the potent bat of David Rappoli by a score of 5-1. David hit two home runs in his two at bats and drove in all five Yankee runs.

His first home run came after Steve Natoli reached first on a bunt single and then was followed by Craig Osgood who reached on an error. David then lined a three-run homer over the left centerfield fence. His second home run came in the third inning after Craig Osgood had singled. The Yankees started Sean Osgood on the mound after not pitching since May 24.

Sean responded with an excellent performance, allowing only one hit, one walk and two strikeouts in his three innings. Craig Osgood followed his brother and pitched the last three innings, allowing one run on two hits, one walk and several strikeouts.

The Yankees managed to keep the Indians off the board in the top of the first when John McMahon doubled to left but was thrown out at third when trying to stretch it to a triple on a good tab by Matt Bolland. Matt Bolland played a strong defensive game for the Yankees at third. The only other hit the Yankees managed came in the fourth when Sean Osgood singled up the middle. Kevin Tobin had a strong game behind the plate, as he was pressed into six innings of duty when Jordan Cammarata came up with a pulled muscle.

The Indians' pitchers were David DeMango, who pitched well but was victimized by Dave Rappoli's two blows. John McMahon pitched the final two innings for the Indians and shut down the Yankees by allowing just one hit and striking out five. The Indians had three hits off the Osgood twins and they were by McMahon, DeMango, and Jacobs.

The Yankee victory put them in the finals for the second year in a row. Last year the Yankees faced the Indians in the final in a great two out of three series.

Yankees 9 Tigers 3

The Rocco's Restaurant Yankees matched up with Rep. Jim Miceli's Tigers for the third time this season to start the final series. Having split the regular seasons matchups and tying for first place, this series had the makeup to be a great one. Both the Yankees and Tigers have shown all year that they canbe explosive with the bat.

The Tigers were coming off two strong wins in the first two rounds of the playoffs. The Tigers jumped out to an early 2-0 lead after three innings behind the strong pitching of David Velardo.

The Yankees had their chances in the first inning but stranded runners on second and third with one out. They then lost another chance to score when Jordan Dammarata was cut down at the plate by a fine throw from the Tiger centerfielder. In the top of the fourth, the Yankee bats came alive as four consecutive hits followed by a walk, strikeout, single and a sacrifice fly lead to a five run forth for the Yankees.

The Yankees then scored four more in the fifth to put them ahead 9-2. The Tigers answered with one more in the fifth. The Yankees again started Sean Osgood on the mound. He managed to get by the first three innings by allowing two Tiger runs, on four hits, three walks and two strikeouts.

Sean was aided by some defensive gems, the first being a 6-4-3 doubleplay in the first and the second one was when Dave Rappoli's relay throw from center cut down Rob Riccio at the plate on a nice tag by Kevin Tobin. Craig Osgood followed his brother again and pitched the last three innings, giving up one run on four hits, with three ks.

The Yankees banged out 13 hits,with Dave Rappoli and Craig Osgood each having three hit games. Other Yankee hitters were Steve Natoli, Dennis DiCenso, Pat Taylor, Jordan Cammarata, Sean Osgood, Andy Bamberg and Joe Caira each with one. Matt Bolland and Kevin Tobin each had sacrifices. This was a team batting performance by the Yankees.

The Tigers' pitchers were Dave Velardo, Matt David and Greg Buck. The Tigers' were lead by Rob Riccio's two hits. The other hitters were Oliveri, David, Velardo, Cavanaugh, Martin and Harrison. The Tigers had eight hits in total.

Oliveri made a two run saving catch for the Tigers in the first inning when he stabbed a line drive off the bat of Dennis DiCenso.

Junior League
Marlins 10 Dodgers 5

The Zeneca Resins Marlins combined a well balanced offensive attack and strong defense (just one error), to hold off the charging Dodgers and end their four game winning streak.

The Marlin's pitcher, Justin Harrison,was tough when he had to be. He scattered five hits and struck out five.

The Marlins got some offensive pop from Ryan Bodureau and Rich Buttaro. Ryan went 2-for-4 and Rich ripped a long double to left.

The Raffi and Swanson Dodgers pitching and hitting had some ups and downs. Just when one thought

Under 10-6 team loses close one to Hornets

It is said that all good things must come to an end, and this is certainly true for the Wilmington Boys U10-6 Soccer team.

The season ended on a hit and humid night in North Reading during a playoff game versus Somerville. Both teams had undefeated records and needed to play each other to win a place in that weekend's Commissioners' Cup. Unfortunately, Wilmington came up one goal shy of a victory against a tough competitor.

The boys played an awesome game, demonstrating their intensity, ability, and heart throughout the match. Both teams were determined and hustled all over the field despite the heat.

The pressure was evenly distributed in front of both goals, with Patrick Storey showing off some nice defensive skills. Brendan DeMango was the first to score after beating several Somerville players, with a nice fake out and a hard shot into the goal. Derek Hanson and Patrick Ryan were essential in passing the ball and really kept the midfield under control. Jesse Belding and Michael Adams were both denied goals as their respective shots hit off the goal posts.

Somerville bounced back hard and furious with two goals, and added a third at the end of the half off a direct kick inside the penalty box. The ball was well placed over the wall of defenders and just tipped off goalie Brian Dalton's fingers and into the net.

The Wilmington boys started the second half with furor. Sean MacPherson and Bryan Raposo kept goalie Patrick Ryan well covered, as Mark Walsh, Richard Barry and Brian Dalton Drove hard into the net. Brian's pass was converted into Wilmington's second goal by Brendan DeMango within minutes, and Michael Scaduto just missed on a shot of his own.

Somerville capitalized on a rebounding goal kick, and advanced to a 2-4 lead. Wilmington counter attacked with a blizzard of shots that missed the net by inches. Then with seven minutes left, Bryan Raposo blasted a direct kick into Somerville's wall, and Richard Barry was well positioned to score number three. Despite valiant efforts by the locals, one more goal was not meant to be on this night. Final score was Wilmington 3, Somerville 4.

The coaches, Shari Belding and Gabe Raposo would like to extend their gratitude to the players and their families for giving us one fantastic season! It was truly an extraordinary group of young men who made coaching a pleasure and we are very proud of a team that played its first season together and accomplished an amazing undefeated record of 8-0-2. Thank you gentlemen!

Girls Under 9A soccer team blanks opponents, twice

The Wilmington Girls Under 9A youth soccer team wrapped up the regular season with two sparkling shutout victories. In the first game, Wilmington hosted a Medford team looking to avenge an early season shutout loss.

Once again, Medford could not put anything past the terrific goalkeeping duo of Danielle O'Shea and Katie Bolger. This allowed Wilmington to stage a constant attack.

In the first half, pinpoint passing between linemates Mallory DeRosa and Kelley Lemke led to a goal by Erin Magee. Medford's advances were stopped at the midfield by the aggressive play of Ashley Bruno and Katelyn Maggio as they kept the ball in the attacking zone.

The second half saw Wilmington getting stronger as they continued to work the ball through the Medford defense. Amanda Miles and Christina Luciano found Samantha Canning on the wing for another goal. Wilmington's super passing continued as Taryn Martiniello took a clearing pass from Alicia Faulkner and set up Kelley Lemke for the final goal of the game and an impressive 3-0 win.

In the last game of the season, Wilmington traveled to Burlington where it completely dominated with great teamwork and speed and posted another impressive victory 4-0. The super play of goal keepers Danielle O'Shea and Katie Bolger completely frustrated Burlington the few times they were able to get a shot on goal.

As in the previous game, the Wilmington girls came out flying and got stronger as the game progressed. Kelley Lemke opened the scoring after taking a nice feed from Mallory DeRosa. The defense of Ashley Bruno and Katelyn Maggio was able to spring Erin Magee upfield with powerful boots.

The team play continued in the second half and resulted in scores by Samantha Canning and Christina Luciano who out ran the Burlington defenders after receiving perfect feeds by Amanda Miles. The Burlington attack was stopped before it could get started with solid work by Taryn Martiniello and Alicia Faulkner who were able to spring Christina Luciano free for another goal to end the game.

The Wilmington Girls U9A team posted a super 7-2-1 regular season record and earned the right to compete for the Division 2 Girls Under 10 championship at the Commissioner's Cup.

As the girls prepare for the Cup, coaches Tony Martiniello and Tucker DeRosa would like to take this opportunity to say thank you to Katie Bolger, Ashley Bruno, Samantha Canning, Mallory DeRosa, Alicia Faulkner, Kelley Lemke, Christina Luciano, Erin Magee, Katelyn Maggio, Taryn Martiniello, Amanda Miles and Danielle O'Shea for a terrific year of great fun and great soccer. You have been a pleasure to coach and watch grow; good luck in the Cup and thank you.

A special thanks to the parents for their enthusiasm and support (even on those very early and cold mornings of indoor soccer). See you at the cup!

ARE YOU PROTECTED?

VIDEO TAPE YOUR INVENTORY

QUESTION: Is there an easier way to inventory your personal property other than taking photos or writing all the information down?

ANSWER: If you have a home video system or can rent one, this gives you the perfect opportunity to tape your inventory for proof of loss from fire, theft and other perils. Using a six-hour video cassette can be the equivalent of thousands of slides or color photos. It's easier to store, and you can narrate while you shoot.

Film one room at a time with close-ups of individual items. Show as much detail as you can. Where possible, include manufacturer's marks and model numbers.

A VIDEO camera is an excellent tool to inventory your personal property for proof-of- loss.

Principals Golf Classic

Last Saturday, 36 of the finest golfers from the John W. Wynn Middle School in Tewksbury took part in the sixth annual Principals' Cup Golf Classic.

The site of the tournament was the beautiful Country Club of Billerica, as the team of Stephan Davos, Paul Saunders, Brett Schettino and Chase Wells finished the nine hole scramble with a one over par, 36. This score bested a record that was set back in 1992 by the team of Jarrod Gennetti, Brian Donoghue, Brian Haskell, and Eric Nutile

This year's field was not only the largest, but was also the most competitive. The second place team of Paul Cohan, Matt Coppi, Jeff Surette and Mark Palladino, finished with a four over par 39. The third place team of Justin Elliott, Scott Favreau, Jay Wagstaff and John Byrne also finished with a 39. Second and third places had to be settled by using a tie-breaker. The first par on the score card was used as the tie-breaker.

Spectacular shots were made on the longest drive fifth hole, when Stephan Davos out drove Paul Cohan by three feet. Stephan's drive covered 250 yards. On the par three sixth hole, Jeff Houlihan put his drive a mere 13'4" from the pin, to win the closest to the pin honors. Mark Peters rolled his drive over the pin nearly scoring an ace.

This year's competition was truly outstanding as all groups finished with excellent scores. The driving force behind the competitors was the desire to have their names engraved on the Principals Cup. These golfers have looked forward to this tournament all year. They have put in many hours of practice on the driving range and on the putting green.

The success of this great event is not only due to its ever increasing popularity and prestige. Its success is due to the great sponsors who have recognized the Principals Cup as one of the truly great events in the world of sports.

Tournament organizers point out that thanks to Disabled American Veterans, Drug Alcohol Resistance Education Committee, Parents Advisory Council of the John W. Wynn Middle School, this great event would not be possible.

John Agiersson is the

"Leader of the band"

By DOUG WOOD-BOYLE

They come from all over the North Shore to show off there musical talents with the Woburn City Band and the Band will travel to far off places to allow its members the opportunity to provide music free to the public.

The leader of this group of musicians is Wakefield native, Reading resident and retired Stoneham lawyer, Jon Asgiersson. As a trumpet player, the 68-year old Asgeirsson has played with the Band since he was 14 and took over as conductor and musical director on the "untimely death of former leader Edson Kimball a former music director at Woburn High School and the organist at St. Charles Church (in Woburn)."

The group is an all volunteer band that can range from 30 to 40 musicians depending on the occasion. However, Asgeirsson notes that whatever the occasion, the people listening can expect "...some toe tapping music."

Asgeirsson said, "We try to play good music and we try to have good musicians."

The quality of the musicians is shown in the background of the players, several of whom are musical directors for area schools and colleges, some have played in the Army and the Air Force bands and another plays in a symphony orchestra.

Trombone player Maureen Horgan is listed on the roles of the band even though she is apt to be playing with a symphony orchestra anyplace in the world. According to Asgeirsson, when she is in the area she will call and see if there is a concert scheduled.

The group is made up of professional musicians, doctors, dentists, lawyers, computer experts, optical experts and a variety of other people, including two talented high school band musicians.

The ages range from 16 years to 84 years of age. However, that person did retire about two months ago because the trip from Lynn was becoming too long.

"I'm not sure who the oldest member is now," Asgeirsson said.

According to Asgeirsson, they all have one thing in common.

"They all like to play band music," Asgeirsson said. That is different from orchestra.

"Everyone knows what a band sounds like. They know that they will hear great songs and foot tapping music."

However, the Woburn City Band, according to Asgeirsson, "...also likes to play some great

Bicentennial Ship Model Show

This year on the Fourth of July an extraordinary fleet of ship models–representing 200 years of USS Constitution and US Navy history-will tie up at the USS Constitution Museum. Old Ironsides and the U.S. Navy: 200 Years in Scale Models will run from Friday, July 4 through Friday, October 31.1997.

This national competition and exhibit will offer a rare retrospective view of United States Naval history. More than 50 master craftsmen have submitted every kind of model from the conventional to the quirky. One entry reincarnates Old Ironsides during her days as a receiving ship when a barn adorned her spar (top) deck. Two of her opponents from the War of 1812, the British frigates HMS Shannon and HMS Cyane, will also be part of the show.

"The USS Constitution Museum is very excited about presenting such an unparalleled collection of ship models," says Burt Logan, USS Constitution Museum Executive Director. "We are paying tribute to both the Bicentennial of Constitution's launching and the approaching 200th birthday of the U.S. Navy in 1998 through this unique exhibition."

The competition and exhibit will spotlight models of the various transformations USS Constitution has undergone and U.S. Naval vessels spanning Old Ironsides' 200-year career. Another category includes foreign or domestic, non-naval ships that enjoy a direct connection to Constitution's illustrious history.

Nationally-recognized ship model experts will judge the competition and choose winners in categories ranging from Best in Show to Certificates of Commendation. The entries also include ships in bottles, dioramas, and cut-aways. The exhibit will showcase models grouped with their contemporaries allowing visitors to view various ships of the same time period.

The show will be Free with Museum Admission and will be on display on the second floor of the Museum's new wing.

Old Ironsides and the U.S. Navy: 200 Years in Scale Models is made possible, in part, by a generous grant from the Sunfield Foundation.

The Museum is open daily 9 am until 6 pm. Regular admission to the museum is $4 for adults; $3 for seniors, $2 for children 6-16, and free to children under six years old. The Museum's "Kids Free" program offers free admission every weekend

- Spires Around Us -

THE FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH is the subject of photographer Frank Gazarian's "Spires Around Us" a look at unique aspects of numerous churches and buildings in the Middlesex East area. Today's subject was built in the Collegiate Gothic Style and was dedicated in 1911 after its predecessor had been destroyed by an electrical fire. It is located on Woburn Street just off of Reading Square and is truly a magnificent edifice. In 1959 a major addition was added at the northerly end of the building to house the educational wing and chapel.

"Leader of the band"

From S-1

literature like Tchaikovsky's "1812 Overture."

This will be the focal piece at the Band's next scheduled free concert, on Friday, July 4 from 6 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. at Woburn's Library Field. Asgeirsson said that the famous crescendo of the piece will be provided by a musket group firing volleys in sync with the Band.

"The scheduled time of the concert will allow people to come hear us and then go off to see any fireworks of their choosing," Asgeirsson said.

When the band is not playing the patriotic music associated with the Fourth of July, it could be playing Irish music for St. Patrick's Day or it may even slip in arrangements of some of the more popular jazz pieces.

"We've put together a melody of three or four of the more popular tunes," Asgeirsson said, "and we have a quartet consisting of a trumpet, tuba, tenor sax and trombone that sits up front."

According to Asgeirsson, the present Band was formed in 1936 at the initiation of former Daily Times Chronicle Publisher/Editor and founder James Haggerty, Sr. Several area musicians were invited to a conference at the Woburn Times former headquarters building on Montvale Avenue to discuss the possibility of taking up where a previous community group had left off on its break-up several years earlier.

For a few months the band practices were held in the offices of the newspaper and then went to such places as the Woburn Public Library. For the past few years the band has called the former Plympton School home for rehearsals.

Although the band is slated for several concerts and parades a year in Woburn there is always time set aside to go on the road. One of those road trips will bring the Band to Memorial Park in Reading for a concert on Sunday, July 13 at 6:30 p.m.

The concert will feature David Workman on the trumpet, direct from an engagement at Tanglewood.

"He can triple tongue faster than anyone you have ever heard," Asgeirsson claimed.

Asgeirsson said that in the past the band has played in such places as the former bandstand on Revere Beach and at Nahant Beach in Lynn. They used to play two concerts a year at Nantasket Beach.

"We keep the band busy during the summer," Asgeirsson said. "If a place has a bandstand we've played there."

Asgeirsson started his career with the Band in 1943 when a fellow Wakefieldian, Alto Horn player Ernie Scarpetti invited him to come along to rehearsals.

The two had played together in a number of Italian bands during the feasts in Boston's North End and West End.

He recalled, "The instrumentation of the Italian bands were all pretty much the same. They were based on the bands in Italy."

Those bands were usually made up of eight clarinets, five trumpets, two or three horns (now known as valve trombones), a bass drum, cymbals and snare drum.

"The music was usually based on operas," Asgeirsson said. "You name the opera and we played it."

Asgeirsson put away his trumpet while he served in the Judge Advocate Generals unit for the Army Medical Corps during the Korean War.

However, when he got out and returned to his studies in law at Boston University, he picked up the trumpet again and played for several dance bands and was a member of the Reading Symphony Orchestra.

It was during those years that Asgeirsson met his wife Beverly, who is also a musician. As one can believe all of their children play one instrument or another and the talent has already sifted down to the third generation.

In fact the talented Asgeirsson and their wives are also members of the Woburn City Band.

Asgeirsson joked, "A friend of mine once asked me if a person had to be a musician to be a member of the family. I replied 'no but it helps.'"

The rest of the Summer Schedule for the Woburn City Band is:

•Tuesday, July 15, 7:30 p.m. at Library Field Woburn;

•Tuesday, August 12, 7:30 p.m. Library Field, Woburn; and •Tuesday, August 26, 7:30 p.m. Library Field, Woburn.

About The Towns
by Phyllis Nissen

Who would have 'guest'?

The Curmudgeon 'speaks'

"Once again, the Wilmington Permanent Building Committee has changed its collective mind regarding priorities for the schools of Wilmington," notes the Curmudgeon in "The only thing permanent is change!," a "Guest Column" in the "Wilmington Town Crier."

"After long insisting the need for a new high school, which effectively scuttled a potentially revenue producing idea, a municipal golf course, now apparently the town doesn't need a high school but rather a single new middle school. The two existing intermediate schools, the West Intermediate and the North Intermediate would be converted into elementary schools. 'You get three schools for the price of one' said School Committee member Susanne Clarkin. She didn't say the price would be $23 million, $2 million less than the formerly proposed high school. Does this $23 million include staffing and transportation costs? Probably not!

"Presently Wilmington has four elementary schools funneling students into two intermediate schools and further into one high school. Now as proposed by the Permanent Building Committee and School Committee, the town would have six elementary schools fueling one middle school and finally one high school (which until not long ago was inadequate for the town's needs)."

'Less is more'

"Isn't this new math wonderful?" continues the 'curmudgeon' (please see above).

"Apparently the current thought in higher education must be that less is more! If one concludes that the elementary schools are indeed overcrowded, where will these excess students go to high school? How many of Wilmington's high school students can go to Shawsheen Tech or private high schools? Apparently quite a few if one follows the School Committee and the Permanent Building Committee logic?

"Wouldn't it be refreshing if both committees would just decide what the Wilmington school needs really are, convince the voters of both the need and solution and move ahead.

"This half baked, half a loaf idea is both illogical and insulting! Long ago I was taught that in mathematics the sum of the parts always equals the whole. Well it seems to me that with regards to today's plan the sum of the parts equals only a hole!

"To see clearly the results of planning and priorities run amuck, just take a drive by the new Tewksbury Police station."

Serenity in Lynnfield

"The town may consider hiring senior citizens to work in the public service office at Town Hall during peak business periods," notes the "Lynnfield Villager."

"Rather than being paid, the senior citizens can earn up to $500 which is deducted from their tax bills.

"Several communities have similar successful programs including North Reading and Reading.

"Town Administrator Joseph Maney suggested the town initiate the program on a small scale, hiring four people to work in the public service office on a temporary basis during the busiest times of tax collection.

"Maney said each person would work 100 hours at $5 per hour and reduce their taxes.

"He said the program has worked well in the other towns and has expanded with the senior citizens also working in the schools, police and fire departments.

"Selectman Chairman Kathleen Caron said she would like more details on the program from the other towns, such as procedures, criteria for participation, and administrative supervision and liabilities to the town if any.

"The program would require authorization by Town Meeting. Maney said the town could use money funded for temporary help in the finance and administrative budget."

Can be helped
Eye fatigue from computers

Do your eyes hurt or does the print blur when you do a lot of computer work? You are not alone. More than half of all computer operators experience eyestrain, headaches, blurred vision and other symptoms directly and indirectly related to the visual stress associated with computer use.

With approximately half the work force using computers in their jobs, millions of people are discovering that visual stress can lead to general fatigue and loss of productivity as well as blurred vision and pain.

Vision is more that 20/20 eyesight. Working at the computer requires you to track, focus and coordinate visual information through both eyes simultaneously. These visual abilities are different than what is measured while reading letters on a distance chart.

Optometrists help relieve computer eye fatigue by testing the visual skills needed for sustained eyeteaming and focusing along with the usual visual tests for sharp eyesight and normal eye health. Treatment may include performance lenses to relieve eye fatigue or a modified prescription specifically for computer use if you already use prescription eyewear. Eye-teaming and scanning problems may require optometric visual therapy to develop the ability to efficiently track and move both eyes together.

Some vision problems may be alleviated simply by making changes in the positioning of keyboard, screen, and chair. The screen should be slightly below eye level and at the same distance from your eyes as the keyboard and copy. Try not to face a window or bright light source. Position yourself so you can look in the distance occasionally to relax the focus of your eyes.

Eye strain or changes in eye sight are the warning signs that something must be done to reduce the possibility of more permanent visual problems. For information on computer eye fatigue relief call the Massachusetts Society of Optometrists at 617-542-9200 or e-mail massoptom@alo.com, for information on an otometrist in your area.

New hemorrhoid treatment

A simple new treatment for thrombosed external hemorrhoids may reduce the need for surgery and provide fast relief of agonizing pain.

Stephen R. Gorfine, M.D., reported the "revolutionary" treatment in a presentation at the 96th Annual Meeting of the American Society of Colon and Rectal Surgeons, June 22-26, at the Philadelphia Marriott.

According to Dr. Gorfine, applying nitroglycerin ointment to the anal canal of patients with thrombosed external hemorrhoids reduces pain so dramatically that patients can comfortably wait for the condition to resolve itself, avoiding surgery. In 90 percent of the people he tested, the drug reduced pain by 60 percent, he said.

Hemorrhoids, enlarged bulging blood vessels in and around the anus, are one of humanity's most common ailments. More than half of Americans develop hemorrhoids, usually after age 30. "Thrombosed" hemorrhoids occur when blood clots form inside, causing acute pain.

Many patients have them surgically removed, despite the fact that the blood clot will dissolve by itself in two to three weeks and severe pain diminishes in three to seven days. The condition is so painful that patients prefer not to wait.

"People who have these things will do anything to relieve the pain," said Dr. Gorfine, associate clinical professor of surgery and associate attending surgeon at Mount Sinai School of Medicine, New York City. "The patients who get this new topical treatment are my most grateful patients."

The nitroglycerin application works by relaxing the internal sphincter muscle, which becomes abnormally tight when a thrombosed external hemorrhoid occurs. When the muscle tightens, it cuts off the blood supply to the anal lining. Acute pain results from reduced blood flow to that area. After completing additional studies to validate his findings, Dr. Gorfine plans to test this treatment on patients with bleeding internal hemorrhoids.

Nitroglycerin has been used for more than 100 years to treat angina, but the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) considers this new formulation for hemorrhoid treatment to be a new drug requiring FDA approval. Dr. Gorfine plans to submit a new drug application to the FDA within 12 months and expects its approval six to 12 months later.

Summer inner-outer health workshop for girls 11-15

Boston Regional Medical Center (BRMC) is offering a summer workshop to help 11 to 15-year-old girls realize and develop both their inner and outer beauty.

Participants will have a better chance of entering adolescence with a healthier self-perception and a healthier body following this program, which emphasizes body image and good nutrition. Topics of discussion include:

What makes up a healthy body?

Nutrition

Stress Management

Looking and feeling healthy (Caring for skin and hair)

HORSLEY EYE CLINIC
Boston Regional Medical Center, 3 Woodland Road, Stoneham

The Summit Technology SVS Apex laser is approved to perform Photo-Refractive Keratectomy (PRK) for the correction of mild to moderate myopia (1.5 to 7.0 diopters) in eyes with ≤ 1.5 diopters of astigmatism. Summit Technology's approval is based on clinical trials of more than 1600 eyes together with safety information through 5 years of follow up. Alternatives to PRK are contact lenses, eyeglasses and radial keratotomy. Studies using a 6 mm treatment zone in 341 eyes have found that at 6 months after treatment, uncorrected vision was 20/40 or better in 95% of eyes and 20/20 or better in 66% of eyes. In 7% of eyes, best corrected vision with eyeglasses declined more than one line with none worse than 20/40. Transient implications up to several weeks included pain (24–48 hours), corneal swelling, double vision, feeling something is in the eye, shadow images, light sensitivity, tearing and pupil enlargement. The following adverse effects occured in at least 1% of eyes within 6 months of treatment: night vision difficulty (11%), elevation of intraocular pressure (2%), hazy cornea affecting vision (2%), overcorrection or became farsighted (5%), undercorrection or still nearsighted (6%), mild halo (10%), minor glare (10%). Long term risks of PRK, beyond three years have not been studied. This laser is not indicated to correct high myopia (nearsightness > 7.0D), astigmatism, or farsightedness.

Whale watch and seabird cruise on July 11-12

Massachusetts Audubon Society's Ipswich River Wildlife Sanctuary in Topsfield is combining forces with Cape Ann Whale Watch of Gloucester to offer a unique opportunity for a private whale watch and seabird cruise led by naturalists from Mass. Audubon and the Whale Conservation Institute. A slide lecture on whales and seabirds on Friday, July 11, 7:30 pm at the Sanctuary will be presented by Christopher Leahy, director of Mass. Audubon's Center for Biological conservation. Mr. Leahy will show slides of the birds and marine mammals we're likely to see on the cruise, and discuss their natural history, behavior, and how to identify them. Due to space limitations, the lecture is limited to the first 75 people who register.

A private chartered boat trip on Saturday, July 12, 8:30am - 12:30 pm leaves from Rose's Wharf in Gloucester. Chris Leahy and Carol Decker, Ipswich River Sanctuary director, will be on board to help identify the birds we may see, including gannets, shearwaters, storm petrels and others. A naturalist from the Whale Conservation Institute will discuss the natural history, identification and behavior of the marine mammals we may encounter, including humpback, finback, minke and right whales.

Advance reservations are required. Fee: $35 ($30 for Mass. Audubon members).

For more information, call the Ipswich River Wildlife Sanctuary at (508) 887-9264.

Nature programs at Fells

An extensive selection of free nature programs is scheduled this summer by The Friends of the Middlesex Fells Reservation and described in their new Summer Fall Program Calendar. The guide lists over two dozen activities and is available by calling the Friends at 662-2340. Information on additional MDC sponsored activities will also be included. All programs are open to the public.

Enjoy the beauty of this local natural resource with an easy stroll or walk over simple terrain or exert yourself with moderate or fast paced hikes over rocky steep hills, many with panoramic overlooks. If your interest is learning about the nature of our nearby woodland, meet others with a similar purpose by joining an outdoor walk and discussion by a knowledgeable naturalist.

This season's subjects involve beautiful butterflies, wild edible plants, varied and interesting trees, marvelous mushrooms, wonderful wildflowers, remarkable geology, arresting cultural history, and the annual hawk migration.

The Friends, an all volunteer association, work to protect this beautiful regional forest which adjoins Malden, Medford, Melrose, Stoneham and Winchester. Working with the Metropolitan District Commission, the Friends inform the public of the natural, cultural and recreational features of the Fells, a unique 2,000 acre natural treasure in an urban setting.

The Fells is a beautiful place to recreate, to observe and to "connect" with our natural environment. It is diverse with rocky hills, meadows, wetlands, oak and hemlock forests, quiet ponds, vernal pools, panoramic vistas and important geological features.

For beauty

It's time to seal your deck

This is the time of yoar when you want to invite friends over, fire up the grill and spend the day lounging on the deck. But if you want to keep it looking good and safe to walk on it's important to treat your deck annually with a sealer-preservative.

Year-around alternating rain and baking sun can reak havoc on decks, drying out the wood and making it susceptible to water retention and rot. In damp climates, it can develop a mossy patina, which can be removed by scrubbing the deck surface with a mild bleach solution.

A weathered deck can be restored to its original wood color with a deck brightening solution, which is available at home improvement stores. Before applying a preservative, take time to replace nails and smooth splintered boards, cautions Bob Leidberg of The Home Depot.

Foot traffic and the weathering process can cause nails to pop up on a deck," he said. "If this is the case, take them out and replace them with corrosion-resistant deck screws and you shouldn't have the same problem again."

Drive the new screws to secure loose decking to joists. If you are reusing the old nail or screw holes, your new fasteners should be slightly longer than the originals. Use an orbital sander to smooth out any rough areas before applying finish to decl:ing boards, railing or stairs.

After you sand the rough areas, vacuum the deck to get rid of any loose sawdust. Apply a staining sealer to all wood, preferably using a pressure sprayer, followed by a paintbrush to smooth out drips and runs. Porous wood may require another coat of staining sealer for even coverage.

Leidberg recommends stain over paint or varnish because it does not form a hard skin that can crack and peel. If your deck already is painted or has a coat of varnish, and you are switching to stain, you must first remove all loose and peeling paint with a scraper and, if necessary, a paint remover. After all the paint has been removed, scrub the deck with a stiff brush to remove all traces of remover. Once the deck has dried, apply a heavy coat of stain and sealer. Avoid staining in direct sunlight or if rain is forecast for the next day.

To Renew your deck

1. Mix deck-brightening solution as directed by manufacturer. Apply solution wih the pressure sprayer and let set for 10 minutes.

2. Scrub deck thoroughly with a stiff scrub brush Wear rubber gloves and eye protection.

3. Rinse deck with clear water. If necessary, apply a second coat of brightener to extremely dirty or stained areas. Rinse and let dry. Apply a fresh coat of sealer or stain.

A trans-continental tractor-trailer stopped at a truck stop in Iowa and the driver went in the diner for a cup of coffee. Bob, his relief driver awoke and went to visit the rest room. The regular driver returned to the truck and headed West. A highway patrolman stopped the truck and told the driver to go back and pick up his relief man. Folks, you can bet that from then on a "Note" was left by Bob when he had to leave the truck.

Folks, after speaking at a Kiwanis Club luncheon meeting, I asked Clout Tomkinson, "How was my speech?" "Didn't you hear the BOO-ing?" "Yes," I said, "but I also heard a great deal of applause." Clout Tomkinson smiled and said, "Chipper, that applause was for those doing the BOO-ing."

Frank Meli told me this, "Chip" years ago. Over 100 employees in a shoe factory had to be sent home because the motor that supplied power to the many belts and shafts failed. The shop mechanic couldn't find the cause of the break-down, so an expert had to be called. A well dressed electrical engineer and recent graduate of M.I.T opened the main power panel, then taking a small screwdriver from his lapel pocket, he reached in and turned One of the Many screws. He then threw the main switch and the giant motor came to life. The many shafts and belts started to turn so the shoemaking machines were back in business. The factory owner was elated because it took the younger engineer less than 20 minutes to find the problem-so-how much could he charge? He thanked the young man and told him to send a bill. The owner got a shock the next morning when the bill said, For turning one screw 10 cents. For knowing Which Screw to turn, Two Hundred Dollars.

Winston Churchill was a great dynamic speaker. He said, "I know great crowds come to hear him speak BUT, if instead of making a political speech I was being Hanged the crowd would be twice as big."

In a very poor section of Peru, a missionary seeing a boy wearing only One shoe asked, "How did you lose the other shoe?" " I didn't," the poor boy replied, "I 'Found' this one."

My friend, Larry Garabedian is a one man "Welcome Wagon." He visits the sick and shut-ins bringing them hope and encouragement to "Hang in there." Woodchips is proud to know a man who brings good cheer to so many.

I walked into Joe's Diner and asked the pretty waitress, "where's Joe?" "He's out to lunch," she replied. "What," I exclaimed, "doesn't he eat here?" "Look here Fatso," she shouted, "Joe may be a little crazy BUT he's NOT stupid.

Merrimack River watershed video is now available

The Merrimack River Initiative (MRI) has produced a video about the Merrimack River and its watershed. The video is available to the public, and illustrates the watershed's many ecological, economic and recreational resources. It is a great educational tool for schools, communities and organizations.

The MRI represents various stakeholders within the watershed, including businesses, industries, governments, recreational interests and environmental groups. The Merrimack River Watershed, the fourth largest in New England, extends from the White Mountains of New Hampshire to the Atlantic Ocean in Massachusetts. The MRI has developed a strategic management plan for the watershed, and produced tools to aid in implementing that plan. The MRI is led by the New England Interstate Water Pollution Control Commission (NEIWPCC), and funded by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). The NEIWPCC was formed in 1947 to coordinate interstate water quality issues, educate water quality providers, and provide outreach to the public.

The video was prepared by the NEIWPCC, the EPA and the Merrimack River Watershed Council (MRWC), a non-profit environmental group based in Lawrence, MA and Concord, NH. The MRWC works to protect and restore the Merrimack River Watershed, to the benefit of communities and ecosystems alike.

The video is suitable for high-school age and above. It explains the challenges facing the Merrimack River and its watershed, describes organizations working to protect this resource, and outlines the management system overseeing the watershed, including federal, state and local partners.

"The video paints a picture of the watershed and its many resources," says Carolyn Jenkins, senior environmental analyst with the NEIWPCC. 'The video connects the watershed to the people who live and work there, and explains what can and should be done to maintain this vital area. It is a good starting point for learning more about this natural resource."

The video is available for free loan from the NEIWPCC, or for purchase from the NEIWPCC for $5. The video is also available as part of a speaker presentation for schools, communities and organizations. If you wish to book a speaker and video, contact the NEIWPCC at 508-658-0500, or the MRWC at 508-681-5777.

Batman and Robin. Rated PG-13 *1/2

Holy Bologna! Someone lost the Batscript on the way to the studio, and they made the movie anyway.

George Clooney is a more soulful and therefore more emotionally evocative Batman than those who filled the suit before him, but is given so little to do you wonder how he justified his paycheck. The screen is often so overburdened with action and action figures you can barely take it all in. Yet for all that overwrought activity, little is actually happening.

There are several villains and sub-villains in this outing, as well as a feminist edition to the body-armored clique with the very cute Alicia Silverstone as Batgirl. However, the one standout in the crowd is Uma Thurman as the sexy and very humorous Poison Ivy. She's the only reason to bother with this flick. Even so, you should just wait for the video.

My Best Friend's Wedding. Rated PG-13. ***

This is hardly a classic romantic comedy, but there are some surprises to this flick, the biggest being that the ending is quite unexpected. The plot has a few twists and there is a wonderful performance from Rupert Everett as Julia Roberts' editor and dear friend. Dermot Mulroney is the best friend she hopes to stop from marrying the perfectly perfect Cameron Diaz. The pacing leaves a lot to be desired and there is a little too much repetition but this has enough charming moments to make up for the leaden ones delivered by Director P. J. Hogan.

Speed World: Cruise Control. Rated PG-13. Talk about being lost at sea. Director Jan de Bont apparently lost touch with the elements that worked so well in Speed, namely the fast pace and the interaction between Keanu Reeves and Sandra Bullock.

Bullock is back this time, but is rarely seen with her new partner in misadventure, Jason Patric. She has little more to do than stamp her foot, while he chases after bad guy Willem Dafoe with a variety of shipmates.

The action is as lumbering as the cruise ship hurtling toward an oil tanker. The dialogue is often strained and always unfunny. Bullock and Patric exhibit no sexual tension, nor do they particularly sparkle individually. Chalk this up as one action flick that is all wet.

Con Air. Rated R. . The action is slick and nonstop as former Army ranger and current parolee Nicolas Cage finds himself on a prison transport plane hijacked by the inmates. though he only wants to get home, Cage plays the hero to a veritable platoon of bad guys, led by John Malkovich in one of his more convincingly creepy roles. This is predictable but charged fun that is saved from being too familiar by some fine performances and witty dialogue.

Buddy. Rated PG . Renee Russo brings much zest to her role as an eccentric 1920's socialite who saves a baby gorilla from imminent death in this fact-based film. It's fun to watch Russo and her menagerie of animals, and those fashions look great, but the plot is so minimal it almost isn't there. The robotic animals are pretty darn good, though they cannot compete with Spielberg's dinos. Youngsters may enjoy this as the animals are darling, but little else happens once she saves that ape.

The Lost World: Jurassic Park. Rated PG-13. Though a technically amazing film, this is about as intriguing as that battery-powered bunny that keeps on going and going. The story picks up where the original film left off, but this time there is no character development, no scintillating dialogue or pseudo-science to keep us interested. instead, we are offered one long, disappointing chase in which even director Steven Speilberg's tricks seem overly familiar. And as fabulous as that I.Rex may look while thundering through the jungle, it appears to be in search of a plot.

Addicted to Love. Rated R. 1/2. Meg Ryan and Matthew Broderick play jilted lovers who team up to spy upon and hopefully break-up their former fiancees who are now living together. The plot moves from silly to preposterous, but the well-developed characters are amusing, and sometimes downright funny. Director Griffin Dunne instills a comic edginess to the film that gives it a slightly unusual bent, but this needed more realism.

The Fifth Element. Rated R. A big budget European spectacular, this is a cinematic pretty face with nothing going on inside. A spectacular disappointment that steals from all the big Hollywood Sci fi flicks in the last 25 years, it results in a visually charged flick with a plot that constantly snakes out of view. Bruce Willis is the New York City cabbie in the 23rd century who finds himself involved with an attractive alien mutant whose mission is to save the planet. The eye-catching visuals will never work on video, and this does have its moments, so consider it recommended to genre fans, but few others.

Extended day grows longer

A real Wynner

"The Tewksbury Public Schools Extended Day Program continues to expand," notes Christine L. McGrath, Ph.D., Superintendent of Schools in the "Tewksbury Town Crier."

"I am pleased to inform citizens of the ongoing and the new programs available.

"The after-school program operates at all four elementary schools. The hours are 3 to 6 p.m. Program activities include creative writing, computer, art, physical education and homework assistance. A snack is provided each day. Parents may enroll their children for the full five day program or on a reduced schedule. Fall registration is now taking place. Call Mrs. Dolly Harrison, Extended Day Director at 851-5510 for information.

"The before-school program operates at the four elementary schools from 7 to 8:30 a.m. The goal of the program is to provide children with a positive start to the school day. Program activities include computer technology, art, physical education and homework assistance. Breakfast is included in the daily schedule. Fall registration is currently underway for this program. Call Mrs. Harrison at 851-5510.

"Before-school instrumental music lessons are offered at all elementary schools for students in grades four and five. The program involves a weekly lesson and a weekly band practice. Call the Community Education Office at 640-9658 to register for the fall program.

"Our Extended Day Summer Program will begin on Monday, June 23 and run through Friday, August 15. The program will be based at the John W. Wynn Middle School. The Summer Program includes art, computer and physical education, and many field trips. Registration is currently taking place for the program. Call Mrs. Harrison at 851-5510.

"The Tewksbury Public Schools are committed to meeting the child care needs of our parents through these structured and nurturing learning environments."

A Little work

Renovations and additions to North Reading's E.E. Little School are expected from now through the next school year, and project coordinators have been looking to turn the project into a positive experience for all involved.

"Voters at Town Meeting in October and at the polls the following month approved $3.4 million in funding for the project, which calls for an eight-room addition and extensive renovation work to the Barberry Street elementary school," notes the "North Reading Transcript."

"Though the project has not yet 'officially' begun, preliminary work to ready the building for the major construction work has already started.

"During school vacation, ceiling tiles that contained asbestos were removed from a section of the building near the gymnasium, commonly known as 'B' wing, according to School Building Committee Chairman Trisha Colella.

"This work was necessary, she explained, before a two-classroom addition to that side of the building could be constructed. She stressed that the tiles were not hazardous but had to be removed to allow contractors access to the infrastructure above.

"Colella said the tile removal work has been completed, but students came back to the school after vacation to find pipes and electrical wires visible through the empty grids that once held these tiles.

"This type of sight will be common throughout the school over the next year or so as the building project is underway, though efforts will be made to keep disruption to students as minimal as possible, Colella said.

"Colella said she hopes the Little School staff, with assistance from the contractor, Shah Construction Co., will take the opportunity to make this an educational experience by working aspects of the project into the curriculum.

"'This could become an exceptional educational opportunity for the children of the Little School,' she said of the work that will literally be going on right before their eyes.

"Colella said the SBC has offered to make arrangements for people involved in the project to speak to classes at the school.

"Though classrooms will have to be shifted around throughout the school year as different portions of the school are worked on, Colella said that there will always be sufficient classrooms for all of the students assigned to that school.

"'Every effort is being made to make this a positive experience for both the children and the community,' she said."

Go sightseeing in vintage vehicles

Can't stand another "Are we there yet?" Travel is often not just about getting from point A to point B, but about enjoying the trip. A number of Bay State touring companies understand this concept, making sightseeing fun by allowing visitors to see the major points of interest through journeys on vintage trains, old-fashioned trolleys, and even authentic World War II amphibious vehicles. Following are a few excursions guaranteed to delight even the most finicky sightseers:

Tootle Along on a Trolley

Trolleys provide a classic, open mode of transportation that is ideal for people who like flexibility. One of the best ways to begin to explore Boston is through a ride on one of the city's many trolley tours offered by companies like Old Town Trolley, Beantown Trolley, Boston Trolley Tours and Discover Boston Trolley.

Tours depart every 15 minutes, and passengers can disembark and re-board on stops throughout the city. Service begins daily at 9 am, and the entire tour takes about 1-1/2 hours without stopping. Prices for day passes begin at $18 for adults and $14 for students and seniors. Prices for children range from free to $7 and vary according to the different companies. In addition, special themed trolley tours scheduled for the summer include a three-hour "Boston and Cambridge Brew Pub" tour and a three hour "JFK's Boston" tour with Old Town Trolley.

Visitors to the bewitching port of Salem also can explore the city's picturesque historic district via trolley. One-hour narrated tours by Salem Trolley Corp. give fascinating facts about this enchanting seaport. Tours depart daily from 10 am to 5 pm from April through October. Prices are $8 for adults and $4 for children ages five -12.

Cape Cod's village of Falmouth offers a two-hour historic tour on select Saturdays from June to September. The tour departs at 9:30 am from the Julia Wood House on Palmer Avenue and travels along Shore Street and Surf Drive to the Old Burying Ground, the original settlement area of the town. Tours cost $10 and depart on June 21, July 12, July 26, August 2 and September 20.

Discover Land & Sea with "Duck Tours

Can't decide whether to take a land tour or cruise along one of the Bay State's beautiful harbors? Amphibious bus and boat vehicles-- also known as "ducks" allow travelers to do both on the same tour! With Moby Duck Tours in Gloucester, visitors begin with a land tour of this historical fishing port and then plunge into the water for a narrated cruise along the harbor. The seasonal tours began in May and depart hourly from 10-4 pm. Tours begin at Harbor Loop in downtown Gloucester. Tickets cost $12 for adults, $8 for children and $10 for seniors.

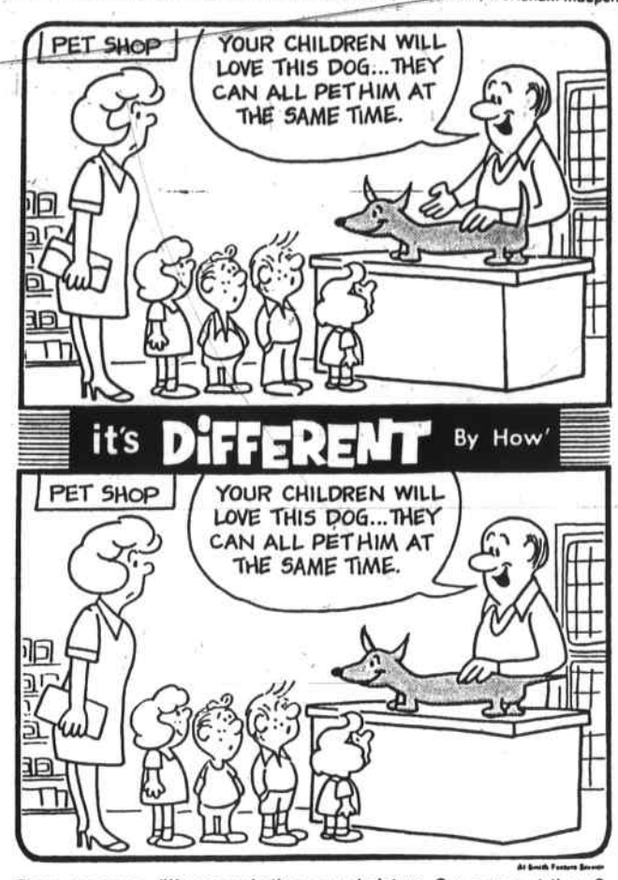

From May through October, visitors to Salem can have a land and sea experience as well with Moby Duck Tours. Passengers listen to facts and folklore about historic Salem, the House of Seven Gables and the infamous witch trials. Later, a water tour reveals the city's maritime history with pirates, seafarers and trade with China. Tours depart National Park Visitors Center daily in season every hour from 10 am - 4 pm. Tickets cost $12 for adults, $8 for children and $10 for seniors.

Choo-Choose a Vintage Train Ride

To really step back in time, return to the romance and elegance of vintage railroad travel on board the Cape Cod Railroad. Relax and let the world go by on this scenic rail journey from Hyannis to Sagamore, with stops in Historic Sandwich village and the Cape Cod Canal. Cranberry bogs, tiny villages and salt marshes provide a dramatic backdrop for this two-hour journey. Trains depart at 10 am, 12:30 pm and 3 pm from June through October. Or, board at night for an exquisite three hour culinary journey on the Cape Cod Dinner Train. Prices for the scenic journey are $11.50 for adults and $7.50 for children ages 3-12. Dinner train prices are $43.95 from sunday through Friday and $51.30 on Saturday.

Train buffs will also enjoy the Berkshire Scenic Railway Museum with rides on the Lenox Local shuttle, historical displays and operating toy trains. Open on weekends and holidays only. Tickets are $1 for adults and 50 cents for children with an adult.

Student athlete website

The Student/Athlete Educational Foundation, Inc. recently launched The Student/Athlete Resource Center, a world wide web site on the Internet designed for high school and college student/athletes according to Lawrence E. Warnock, founder and Executive Director of the Foundation's parent organization, the Center for Health & Athletic Performance, Inc.

Utilizing more than ten years of experience working with student/athletes with all aspects of their busy, often stressful lives, the website offers information about proper weight training for most sports including photos and descriptions of exercise, stretching and flexibility routines, nutritional information and how to avoid injuries.

There is information about how to choose careers, selecting the right college, sports scholarships and financial aid. Athletes can investigate more than 1,4000 college websites for on-line applications and information about admissions and sports programs and search other places on the world wide web for helpful information.

Enrolled student/athletes will receive an eight-page electronic magazine published every month with information about emerging careers, college majors, sports activities, and conditioning tips. A moderated chat lounge will provide athletes an opportunity to communicate with college coaches and admissions recruiters and an electronic bulletin board will give student/athletes a forum for exchanging ideas and information.

The Student/Athlete Resource Center is a subscription service whereby high schools can enroll student/athletes at a minimal fee. Once 50 or more student athletes sign up for individual passwords, the school's subscription fee is waived. The student/Athlete Educational Foundation, Inc. is a non-profit organization and will use income generated by fees to further advance the website and associated programs for high school and college student/athletes.

Warnock expects more than 30,000 student/athletes will be on-line by the end of the year. We've only been on-line for a few weeks and schools from all over the country have already signed on. The information available is really helpful for kids. "Warnock states. Contact The Student/Athlete Educational Foundation, Inc. at 617-944-7431 or e-mail them at info@-chap.com.

The House of the Week

Solid, warm and substantial

Solid, warm and substantial, brick is in, and the Hearthside glories in it. A full coat of bricks covers its entire exterior. Columns, keystone arches and corner quoins add to the dignified appearance.

But the floor plan is far from stuffy. Family living areas dominate with a swath of informal rooms cutting right down the center. The 18-foot ceiling in the foyer carries over into the street facing, richly windowed eating nook.

A plant shelf that overlooks the passageway, wraps around to the front, while another plant shelf marks the juncture of kitchen and great room. Potted plants flourish on these bright shelves producing cascades of green foliage.

In the kitchen, two islands house cooktop, sink, dishwasher and eating bar. From the sink, you can gaze into the vaulted great room and enjoy the vista beyond. Windows fill most of the rear wall, naturally illuminating the space. On gray days, the two-sided fireplace offers cheerful flames and warmth.

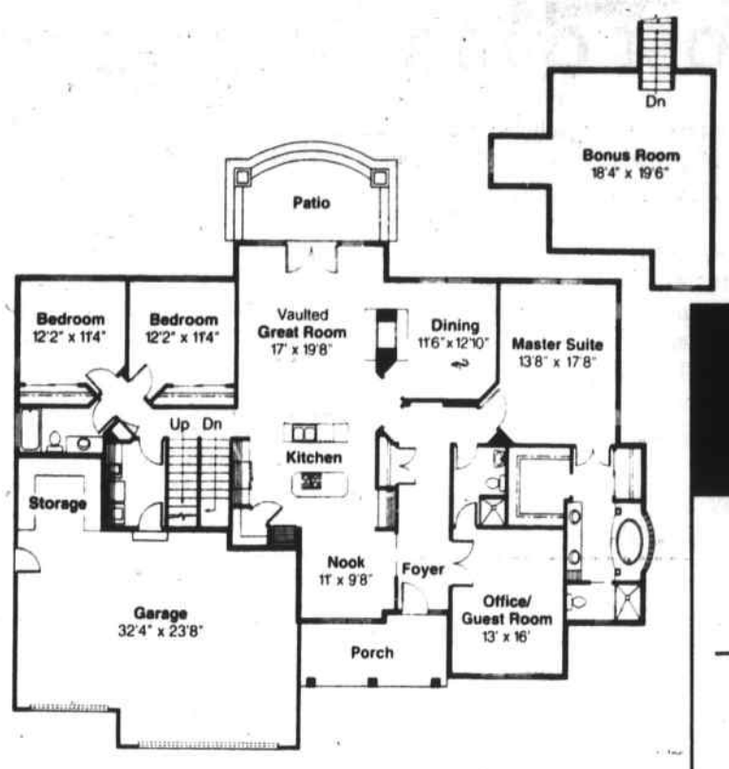

The front-facing study could be outfitted as a living room or guest room. A bathroom is accessible from within, and from the hallway.

Master suite and dining room both have classic coffered ceilings. In the master bathroom, a curved glass block wall next to the spa tub rounds out the space. Other features include dual vanity, large walk-in closets, and separately enclosed shower and toilet.

Secondary bedrooms are in the Hearthside's opposite wing, as are steps leading up to a bonus room and down to the basement. A pass-through utility room connects the house to a roomy three-car garage with added space for a shop.

For a review plan, including scaled floor plans, elevations, section and artist's conception, send $15 to Associated Designs, 1100 Jacobs Dr., Eugene, OR 97402. Please specify the Hearthside 10-350 and include a return address when ordering. A catalog featuring over 170 home plans is available for 412.

Kitchen most dangerous room

According to a national study of emergency room statistics, the most dangerous room in the house is the kitchen. Over 120,000 people cut themselves each year on broken glassware. Cracked glassware should be secured or disposed of to prevent cuts. Scissors, knives, ice picks and other sharp tools should be stored separately and used only in the manner it is intended. Tools are designed to do specific jobs, and if used incorrectly, serious injuries can occur. To prevent injuries in the kitchen:

Keep all kitchen utensils and cleaning products, such as pesticides and other hazardous substances, locked up and out of the reach of children.

Turn the handles of pots and pans towards the back of the stove or counter. Use the back burners for cooking whenever possible. Never leave a boiling pot or sizzling skillet unattended.

Towels, curtains and other flammable materials should hang a safe distance from the stove.

Kitchen fans and stove ventilation exhaust should be clean and in good working order.

Electric cords should run a safe distance from the sink or range and the outlet should not be overloaded.

A non-skid floor mat should be placed in front of the sink to prevent water from spreading over the floor. To prevent falls, clean up spills immediately.

The kitchen should always be well lit.

More than 70,000 Americans are injured each year in their bathtubs and showers because of slippery surfaces. To prevent slips and falls, a suction-cup rubber or non-slip mat with skid-proof backing, should be placed at the bottom of your bathtub or shower, and another skid-proof rug placed on the floor when you step out.

A support bar will also prevent falls in the bathroom. The bar should be securely installed in the bathtub or shower. To prevent injuries in the bathroom:

Do not touch any electrical switches while hands are wet or damp since water conducts electricity.

Keep hair dryers, electric shavers or other electrical appliances away from water and unplugged when not in use to prevent electric shock.

Never leave a young child or an elderly adult unattended in a bathtub.

Your Garden - Your Home

New way to view landscape

For those homeowners looking to put green in their yard and keep green in their pockets, Xeriscape offers an alternative solution to high water maintenance landscape.

"Xeriscape is more than cactus and rocks. It's a concept using drought-resistant plants from all over the world," said Burnie Hughes, a garden expert with Home Depot. "You can have almost any garden you like and still save water."

This gardening of the '90s, which combines creative landscaping and water management, is a sensible trend that is taking hold in dry summer areas.

Planning and design. Planning is the most important step to a successful Xeriscape. Organizing a garden for aesthetics, practicality and water efficiency can help avoid costly mistakes and ensure long-term cost-effectiveness.

Soil improvement. This allows for better water penetration and improved water holding capacity of the soil. It is best to test soil to determine the correct adjustments and water amount needed. Appropriate plant selection. Year-round greenery, bright flowers, borders and accents can all be achieved efficiently and attractively. Many plants are a lot more drought tolerant than you would imagine.

Practical turf areas. Turf can be limited or even replaced with other less thirsty materials, such as ground covers, low water use plants or mulches.

Efficient irrigation. Irrigation technology has boomed in the last few years. A combination of sound irrigation design and installation with careful water management will conserve water.

Use of mulches Mulches include organic materials, such as bark, or chips and inorganic materials, such as rock or gravel, all of which cover and cool the soil.

Appropriate maintenance. "Pruning, weeding, proper fertilization, pest control and water adjustments preserve the intended beauty of your landscape," said, Hughes. "Because of their design, Xeriscapes can result in reduced maintenance cost and time."

Begin your Xeriscape design by making a list of what you want and need for your garden, and a budget. "Hardscape" features, such as gravel or decks, may cost a bit more initially, but they will never require water.

Consumer tips on growing hydroponic plants at home

Hydroponics is a system of growing plants in porous clay pebbles, fertilizer and water, instead of soil. House plants grown in this manner should only be placed indoors and out of direct sunlight.

Hydroponic plant cultivation dates back to the Hanging Gardens of Babylon and most of the world's rice crops have always been grown this way. In Germany, 50 percent of the house plants are rooted in hydroponics.

There are six components to hydroponic system:

Interior grow pot, Exterior water pot, Water gauge, Clay pebbles, Fertilizer, Plants.

Hydroponic plants are perfect for travelers, according to Burnie Hughes, a gardening expert with The Home Depot. By filling the water gauge to the maximum level, the water supply will last up to four weeks, eliminating the guesswork of watering too much or to little.

Many commercial growers use hydroponic systems for vegetable and herb growing and commercial interior professions have found hydroponics to be an efficient and time-saving way of maintaining plants. Hydroponics are an attractive option since the time between watering is lengthened and replacement plants are rarely needed because soul-born diseases should not afflict the plants.

Fertilizing is an essential part of the hydroponic system. Most hydroponic plants require fertilizer every three to four months, with normal watering every two to four weeks.

Crabgrass prevention tips

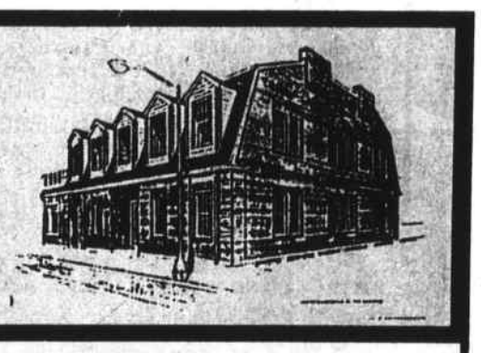

Homeowners can now obtain information on how they can fertilize their lawns and prevent crabgrass at the same time via the Internet.

Rohm and Haas Company, manufacturer of DIMENSION® crabgrass preventer, has set up a Home Page to assist homeowners in battling this pesky weed. The web site, which can be accessed at http://www.crabgrass.com., also includes other helpful hints for maintaining a healthy lawn.

According to Chris Shadday, Rohm and Haas Manger - Turf and Ornamental Products, homeowners can use the Home Page to determine the best time to apply a formulated fertilizer.

"Our Home Page is designed to help homeowners with many of the lawn care questions they may have," says Shadday. "It discusses the best time of year to apply crabgrass preventers, how to rid a lawn of crabgrass and fertilize it at the same time, and how to control other weeds such as oxalis and spurge. We developed this Home Page as a useful tool for homeowners to help them maintain a beautiful lawn all year long."

Hold a successful garage sale

Hundreds of thousands of "garage sales" will be held in the coming months. Many of the people holding these sales don't even have a garage. So the "garage sales" are held in the front yard, back yard, basement, porch, breezeway or any place that merchandise can be displayed and potential customers accommodated.

Consumer Education Research Center, a national non-profit consumer group, has just published a book entitled, "Holding Garage Sales for Fun and Profit" that is a must for those planning a "garage sale." It advises you whether your temperament, location and merchandise will produce a successful sale. If you decide to hold a sale the book takes you through the whole process including pricing, merchandising, display tricks, and even how to recognize shoplifters.

Holding a Garage Sale for Fun and Profit can be obtained by sending $6 (plus $1.25 p & h) to Consumer Center, 1980 Springfield Ave, Maplewood, NJ 07040, by calling them at 1-800-872-0121. If you would like to read this book or other of the organizations books free, you can have a look at their website at http://www.planet.net/cerc.

First, you must consider if you are the type of person who can handle meeting strangers and haggling over prices.

Once you have decided to go ahead, you must get your merchandise together, price it, learn how to display, publicize and advertise. This book goes over the process in detail and will make a first-timer into a confident, competent garage-sale seller.

Rust and corrosion prevention tips

While most homeowners know how to treat and prevent rust spots on junior's tricycle or wagon, preventing rust and corrosion in the home is more important — and more of a mystery.

Here are typical areas of the home that are subject to corrosion — and eventual repair bills, plus the preventive measures you can take. Flashing

Suppose a piece of flashing works its way loose from your chimney. Ignoring the fact that the flashing was improperly installed, your first idea is to quickly refasten the loose flashing by driving a couple of steel masonry nails into the mortar joints and then caulking over the nailheads.

Don't do it. Galvanic corrosion will result, especially when the caulk breaks down. The steel nailheads in contact with the stainless steel will corrode quickly, and the flashing will become loose and fall off. Also, the nail will rust, expand and break apart more mortar, damaging the chimney. Instead, tuck point the joints where the flashing loosened. Gutters

If you have old-fashioned steel gutters on your house, clean them well. Tannic acid leaches out of leaves as they lay in your gutters. This acid is corrosive to steel gutters and stains aluminum, so keep the gutters clean.

To the people of Wilmington

On behalf of the Kiwanis Club of Wilmington, I would like to offer my sincere thank-you to the residents of Wilmington, the business community and countless volunteer who donate time, money and effort to help us as a club continue our efforts to make life a little bit better for those who need it.

As briefly as I can, I'll list some of the charities that your dollars and efforts support.

1. Scholarships to graduating high school seniors
2. Dinners and social gatherings for the elderly
3. Bicycle Rodeo (bike safety)
4. Christmas Adopt-a-family program
5. Alliance for Wilmington Youth
6. Wilmington Youth Center
7. Kiwanis Pediatric Trauma Center
8. Sponsor of the Fourth of July Committee

This supplement is prepared by the Kiwanis Club of Wilmington. It is presented with pride to the town. The advertisers in this supplement, through their generosity support the Kiwanis in their many charitable works. Please support them.

To learn more or to join the club speak to any Kiwanian on the Common during the week of the 4th! Membership is open to an man or woman in town who is interested in helping the community in a quiet, rewarding way. Call 658-2346 (The Town Crier) for more information.

Along with the above programs, the club also is working on developing a new playground to be located at the town beach at Silver Lake. This first stage is in the works now and we hope to expand it each year, once construction begins. All will be welcome to use this park free of charge.

If anyone would like information on becoming a member of the Kiwanis Club of Wilmington please feel free to call me during business hours at my office 658-6580. Or stop by the Kiwanis tent for more information. Membership is open to any man or woman living or working in Wilmington who has an interest in helping others.

In closing, I would like to give special thanks to the members of the Kiwanis Club for their uncompromised support and patients throughout the past year. You all deserve three cheers!

Have a happy and safe Fourth of July. See you on the Common!

The Wilmington Minutemen will, of course, be part of the ceremonies again. They will be escorting the flags in on Saturday, July 5th as part of the big day and also serving up a pancake breakfast on Sunday from 7 - 10 a.m.
